Grey Goose L'Orange Cosmopolitan

3 oz. Grey Goose® L'Orange
1/2 oz. Grand Marnier®/Cointreau®
Splash of cranberry juice
A squeeze of fresh lime
Garnish with lime peel

To make the best
Cosmopolitan in the world, start with Grey Goose L'Orange.

In a blind taste test, the Beverage Testing Institute of Chicago sampled seven Cosmopolitans, each made with a recipe of Cointreau®, cranberry juice, and the leading premium and ultra-premium vodkas. After careful consideration, all judges chose the Cosmopolitan made with Grey Goose L'Orange, the best tasting vodka in the world with a whisper of orange. Imported from France, L'Orange is a blend of choice grains and naturally filtered mineral water infused with the sweetness of succulent oranges.

Rank	Vodka Cosmopolitans
1st	Grey Goose® L'Orange "Aromatic citrus nose. Lush, smooth mouth-feel. Robust, natural orange flavors... Long evolving finish. Very refreshing and highly drinkable."

the house.*

It's not a phobia. It's more like an obsession. We just can't let go, and our clients wouldn't have it any other way. You see, for every one of the magnificent custom homes we've built on the East End, we still have a key. That way if the owner is out of town and something needs our attention, we can attend to it. And with a staff of project coordinators, painters, plumbers, electricians, heating and air-conditioning experts, as well as craftsmen, on hand full time, the quality of any maintenance work or additions, equals the quality of the original the work.

Some builders hand you a key at the end of construction and say goodbye. Our clients hand us a key and say stay. Guess you can say we're your warranty, and we never run out.

1(888) 414 - DOWN

Thanks to our retail and "online" customers we are one of the largest resources for goose down comforters, pillows and featherbeds. Consumers that compare our quality and prices to those of department stores, discounters, catalogs and other web sites find that we are indeed unbeatable - and we guarantee that! Know the facts of down before you buy.

FACT: Down comes from the chest of the bird to keep it insulated from the weather. Feathers (those things with quills) come from the back of the bird to keep it dry. Down can cost as much as $10.00 an ounce, feathers 10¢ an ounce. Over 90% of down manufacturers find it to their advantage to add over 30% feathers to their down. It's like buying three pounds of ground sirloin and getting two pounds of meat and one pound of fat. You have paid for meat and got fat, it's the same with their down, they both do it because it's legal. We do not contaminate our down by adding feathers to it.

KNOW THE FACTS BEFORE YOU BUY IT

FACT: Fill power, this is the amount the cubic inches filled by one ounce of down. Higher fill power means a higher quality down. You will find that as the quality of the down increases, so does the comfort & life of the item.

FACT: We use only high thread count, baffle box construction, 100% cotton covers on our down comforters & pillows. Down insulates by trapping air and holding in your body temperature, keeping you comfortable through the night. Low quality comforters are usually heavier because it takes more of an inferior down to fill a comforter. Inferior down becomes clumpy and it can't breathe, resulting in your becoming overheated and uncomfortable. Our high quality down gives you the warmth and comfort without the weight.

FACT: In all likelihood you will have your comforter longer than the car you are now driving.

"We go the distance for you."

You Knew This Place Would Really Be Dune Hampton Town Hall

By Dan Rattiner

Dan's Papers has obtained secret documents that show the huge structure being built by industrialist Ira Rennert in Sagaponack is no longer intended to be a private home for he and his family. It is now being built to become the new village hall and courthouse for the proposed Village of Dune Hampton.

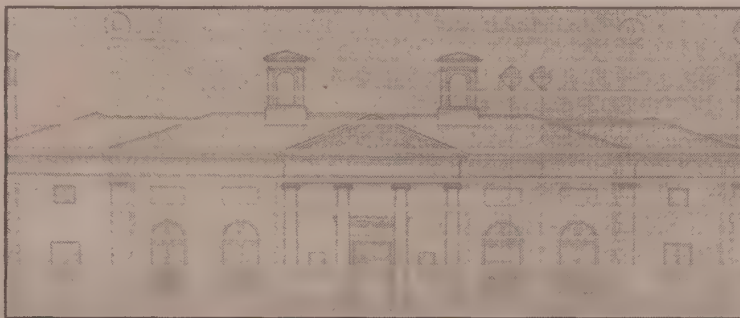

Above on this page is a photograph of this structure as it appears today. We also publish some of the plans, not only for the "main house," but for all the other civic structures on the property, which bear the code names "beach house," "game room," "gatehouse," "pool house," "guest house" and "tennis house."

Here are the uses that some of the rooms are to be put to according to the secret documents we have found.

The main house has three floors that are clearly marked with the purpose of, not only each room, but each floor. The third floor is the private apartment of the Ruler of Dune Hampton and features not only a Throne Room and private chambers for the Ruler, but also the private suite of the Queen, a War Room with an enormous map table, a banquet hall, a private suite for the Ruler's entourage, a pri-ivate chapel, a massage and steam room, private quarters for the Sommelier and Royal Chef, Public Relations Officer, Tennis Coach, Children's Tutor and Court Jester. There is a private suite for the Royal Wizard, with a prayer porch that faces to the east.

The third floor is the only floor in the main house, to be called the Eastern Palace, which has a view of the beach.

The second floor contains the private offices of the various heads of governmental departments: people who don't live on the premises, but who work there. There is an office for the Fireworks Commissioner, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, the Keeper of the Royal Deer, Striped Bass and Piping Plovers, the Tax

Collector, the Chairman of Archives and Galleries, the Royal Commissioner of the Ancient and Historical Monuments of Mecox, the Royal Falconer, the Secretary of State, the Dune Hampton Environmental Protection Officer, the Prison Warden, the Chairman of the Unrelated Live Transplant Regulatory Authority, the Chairwoman of the Women's Equality Unit, the Chief Physician, the Director of the Radioactive Waste Management Advisory Committee, the Treasury Solicitor, the Student Loan Officer, the Chairman of the Beach Jetty Approval Commission, the Chief Sanitary Engineer, the Chief of the Wall Street Legal Defense Fund, the Chairwoman of the Flag of Dune Hampton Selection Board and the Steel Beach Revetment Approval

Board Chairman. The Chief Lifeguard also has an office on the second floor.

The first floor of the main building is where the ample bureaucracy of the Village of Dune Hampton interfaces with the general public. There is the Village Clerk's office where people go to get beach stickers — free for residents of Dune Hampton, unavailable for anyone not

South O' the Highway (and the North too)

Southampton's Wilbur Ross, CEO of W L Ross & Co LLC, is buying Burlington Industries for $620 million. Burlington is a distressed company that Ross thinks can be saved. And he has a plan. He's already rescued much of the American Steel Industry. Maybe he's right.

Alan and Ivan Wilzig, hosts of some of the Hampton's hottest parties in recent years, took their Water Mill castle off the market. With Alan's upcoming marriage Ivan will purchase Alan's interest in the property. Their father, Siggy, who lived there last summer, passed away this year.

Matthew Broderick of Bridgehampton and Nathan Lane will reprise their roles in The Producers on Broadway beginning New Year's Eve for a three month run. The Producers won 12 Tony Awards in 2001. A ripple effect is expected to benefit other Broadway shows as Bialystock and Bloom reclaim the throne of popularity along the great white way.

Gaby Rodgers is directing a video, Cote d'Azur, which will be shown at the Hamptons International Film Festival. The script is by Preston Sturgis, Jr., with costumes by Christophe de Menil. Maria Pessino, who founded the Oddfellows Playhouse of the Hamptons and Peter Davenport are cast in the leading roles. The Robert Wilson Foundation is a sponsor of the project.

Michelle Pfeiffer, who starred in the 1980's film by Alan Alda that was shot in the Hamptons, Sweet Liberty, lunched with her husband, David Kelley and Steven Spielberg and Kate Capshaw at Babette's in East Hampton, alongside Lizzie Grubman, reporter for 102.7 Blink Radio.

Jack White of White Stripes injured the index finger of his left hand when he and his girl friend, Renee Zellweger of East Hampton, were in a car accident in Detroit. White Stripes, concerts here and in UK are cancelled for now.

Ron Perelman of East Hampton received a head rubbing by California Governor hopeful Arnold Schwarzenegger at the Four Seasons in New York. They were joined by Edgar Bronfman of Amagansett, Katie Couric, Marvin Traub, Tim Florio and Lally Weymouth.

Final bids for Vivendi Universal Entertainment closed August 18. Edgar Bronfman, NBC and Viacom are still in the running, with MGM and Liberty Media now out of the picture.

Go Fish is the name of the new specialty film

from Dune Hampton. There is the Building Application and Rubber Stamp Approvals Office. There is the Family Registry. And there is the Main Police Headquarters, which supervises the four substations located elsewhere on the property. There is a law library, an Internet cafe and a Tennis Dispute Resolution Office. There is also a private bank, the only non-public business establishment in Dune Hampton, with a machine that dispenses Starbuck's coffee.

What is marked on the original plans as "guest house" is called the Western Palace in the plans we uncovered. It has everything that the Eastern Palace has in it, only reversed and at half the size. In addition, it has a small wing marked Dwarves and Trolls Dormitory, though it is not clear what is meant by this. There is also a larger windowless wing marked Dune Hampton Military Academy, in which are contained several rooms marked boxing ring, barracks, dining hall, discipline room, classroom and Weapons of Mass Destruction Closet.

The plans show that the Rennert family garage, which has space for 14 cars, is actually an indoor parking lot for the various Village Officials. One of the slots is marked with a sign RESERVED FOR THE EMPLOYEE OF THE MONTH. There is also a small facility called the Village of Dune Hampton Highway Vehicle Maintenance Facility. And a Steel Beach-Wall Foundry.

What is listed as a "gatehouse" is actually Police Substation #1. The rooms inside include an interrogation room, a holding pen, a surveillance camera room and a small padded room indicated as a "place for people found wandering around on the lawn." There is also a locker room, an evidence closet and something marked "lie detection laboratory."

The Beach House is Police Substation #2. It has many of the same rooms as Police Substation #1 but in addition has a torture room. The room marked "place for people found wandering around on the lawn" at Substation #1 here reads, "place for people found wandering around on the beach." There is an aviary with, as its centerpiece, a perfect replica of the beach that is filled with hundreds of piping plovers. Also a "detention hall for people not from here found sunbathing, having bonfires, making out, drinking, surfing and swimming in the ocean." It appears that the birds, a protected species that annoy oceanfront property owners by taking over their beach during a long breeding season, will be relocated to a climate-controlled, indoor beach all their own.

What is marked on the original plans as the "tennis house" is the Village Courthouse and Hall of Justice. There is a small room marked wigs, scepters and robe closet. There is a judge's antechamber, a robing and disrobing room, a large Village Courtroom and Mistakes Rectification Pleadings Room, a Sergeant at Arms Rifle Range, a lawyer horse-trading room and a Guillotine Repair Shop.

The long, straight "driveway" that leads into the property, along one side of which is a small "power plant," is actually an airport runway and baggage terminal. The outdoor parking lot for 85 cars and turnaround are actually an aircraft "tiedown" area and helicopter landing pad.

What is marked as a groundskeeper's shed is really a tiny one-bedroom home marked "House Arrest Facility for the Rennert Family."

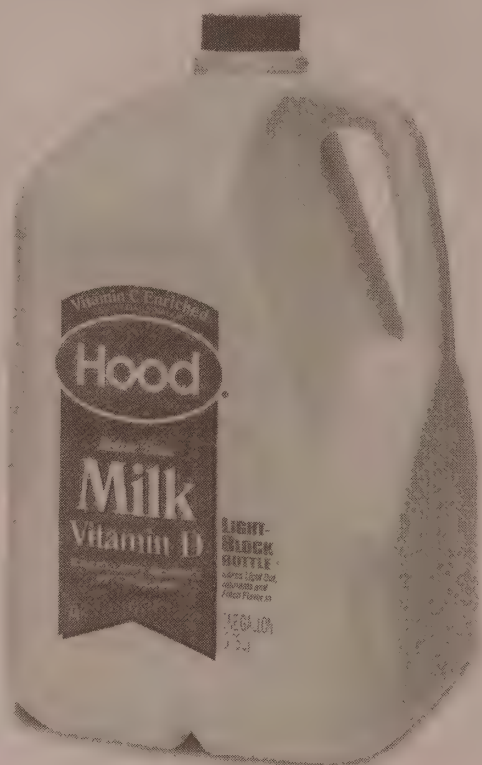

Only one structure in the original plans seems to be marked correctly. The game room, in the original plans, is marked movie theatre, pool table, indoor swimming pool and gymnasium. It is also marked game room in the plans Dan's Papers has located, although the items marked inside are roulette, blackjack, bingo, poker and slots, also a cashier's cage and walk-in safe.

Police Substations #3 and #4 are not actually buildings. They are underground concrete bunkers with periscopes that go up and down and look this way and that and they are located at the eastern and western borders of the property.

People who wish to see the architectural plans that were secretly given to us would be welcome to come by Dan's Papers to have a look at them, but last night, unfortunately, they were stolen and so now we don't know where they are.

Last week, the prospective residents of Dune Hampton, an obviously gerrymandered and peculiarly shaped section of Sagaponack, two-hundred yards wide and six-miles long, filed a petition to request a special election to see if a vote to create Dune Hampton should be scheduled.

The Town of Southampton Police Department is investigating the theft of the plans we obtained.

The Dairy Expert

Founded in 1846, HP Hood is in its 157th year as New England's leading dairy, providing dairy products to New England consumers. And now, we make Hood products available to Long Island consumers.

Hood's success lies in its commitment to traditional values: quality and innovation. Hood is the brand name that consumer's trust.

Hood milk in the LightBlock Bottle is enriched with Vitamin C. The LightBlock Bottle® protects milk from light, which breaks down Vitamins A, B and C in milk. Light also causes oxidized and off flavors in milk. Each 8 oz. serving of Hood milk contains 25% of the daily value of Vitamin C. The LightBlock Bottle provides a better tasting and more nutritious milk.

Simply Smart® milk is fat free milk that tastes like 2% milk and lowfat milk that tastes like whole milk. Simply Smart has 25% more natural protein and 20% more natural calcium than whole milk.

For more information on where to find Hood dairy products on Long Island, contact HP Hood at (800) 553-2054 x3040.

Circle of Truth.

For thousands of years, when the Shinnecock people "come to the circle" to settle important issues, they speak honestly and truthfully from the heart. For many Indians, holding a special stick — called the "Talking Stick"— is an age-old custom believed to compel each person to tell only the facts.

Some of our neighbors and community leaders are not doing that. They are spreading un-truths — myths designed to confuse and mislead. It is time to come to the circle.

Untruth: Shinnecock Tribal members won't benefit from a gaming facility.

- The Shinnecock Nation will control all aspects of the gaming facility.
- The Tribe created an Indian Gaming Authority to oversee its implementation from blueprint to completion — including budget, cash flow and employment.
- Outside investors are accountable to the Shinnecock people, the Authority and its leaders ...no one else.

Untruth: Traffic will be unmanageable in the Hamptons.

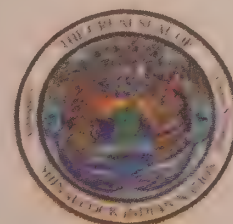

- The Tribe has offered the New York Department of Transportation to pay for construction of a separate entrance from Sunrise Highway, west of the Shinnecock Canal.
- Traffic would then be diverted from neighborhoods.

Untruth: An Indian gaming facility will harm the environment, particularly the Peconic Bay Estuary.

- Our plans include a state-of-the art water treatment operation. So innovative and self-contained, that no harm can possibly come to the Peconic Bay Estuary.
- The facility will be built in a tasteful manner reflecting our 10,000-year heritage and blending into the environment.
- Several private homes in the Hamptons are larger than the gaming facility we have planned.
- Shinnecock reverence for land and sea dictates responsible environmental planning.

Untruth: Indian gaming will not contribute to the local economy.

- An Indian gaming facility would provide year-round local jobs to Indians and non-Indians.
- Local vendors will supply goods and services to the facility.
- An independent, impartial report to the National Gambling Impact Study Commission concluded that "tribal casinos do contribute significantly to local, state and federal tax bases — contrary to popular belief."

Join us for our annual Labor Day Weekend Powwow to meet your Shinnecock neighbors, learn more of our history and our culture.

No Circus Comes To The Hamptons, No Hurricane Hits The Hamptons

By Dan Rattiner

Sometime in August is when the circus usually comes to town. They have done so for each of the last twenty-five years. Now it is not coming. We are to have a circus-free summer.

The reason they're not here this year is because of PETA, the organization that protests just about everything that people do to animals other than pet them. They have a strong contingent here in Southampton. And each year for the past eight years they have demonstrated and carried signs out front of the Cole Brothers Clyde Beatty Circus grounds in Southampton adjacent to the VFW, and the kids skipping happily along with their parents to go to the circus have had to basically cross a picket line. Finally the circus just plain gave up. They will be erecting their tents in Smithtown and Babylon and Bay Shore and many other places, but not in Southampton. And so that is the end of that.

With no prospect of seeing lions, tigers and elephants in Southampton this summer, I went in June to Cirque de Soleil, which had set up its tents on Randall's Island off Manhattan. I had never seen it before. And I was told it would be quite unique and it certainly was. There were no lions, tigers and elephants, but there were actors dressed up as lions, tigers and elephants. They would come out from behind some tall reeds, looking at some people dressed up as antelopes doing a dance, and they would lick their chops and swish their tails. Then another person Cirque de Soleil had been worked very hard. Dawn to dusk. Sometimes all night. And they weren't paid very much, because there was such vigorous competition for these jobs that it was an honor to be chosen and so the bosses could work them to death for practically nothing.

Was it okay for a person to be treated as an animal, but not okay to BE an animal?

Was it okay for a person to be treated as an animal, but not okay to BE an animal?

I thought about this, and all I could come up with was that PETA people would argue that the actors had been ASKED to be performers in this circus, while the animals had been TOLD they would be performers in the circus. Real animals were FORCED into this servitude.

Well, at several points, people dressed up as giant tropical birds climbed ropes and swung back and forth overhead and they did this without a net, so if they fell they would be very dead. But because they were very macho and very skilled, they would take this risk in order to be paid a few pfennigs that day once you divided up the take and took out the percentage for the bosses.

dressed as, say, a crocodile, would come in and shoo them away back into the reeds.

It was amazing how well these actors simulated being lions and tigers and elephants. And of course PETA was not demonstrating and holding signs and carrying on out front and I wondered why. I was told that the actors who had been chosen to be these animals in

Just as a test, I asked my little dog the other day if he wanted to go to the beach and he barked and turned round and round, which is his way of saying yes. Later I asked him if he wanted dinner and he barked and turned round and round and then I asked him if he wanted to join the circus. He barked and turned round and round.

I had tricked him.

There is something else that usually happens in August that isn't happening and that is a big hurricane. In past years, during August or the beginning of September, hurricanes, often several of them, would roar up the Atlantic coast, a hundred miles out to sea, barreling along past Florida, South Carolina, Maryland, and New Jersey, and they would continue coming north, one-hundred miles east of the mainland and everybody here on Long Island would note that this island sticks out to the east into the Atlantic Ocean about a hundred and thirty miles. We would tremble in our boots.

Then, WHAM. She'd hit. Or he'd hit. The whole island would shake. Houses would be uprooted, huge waves would crash into the shore and most people on the island would say whew, it's a good thing the hurricane hit over on another part of Long Island rather than here, while other people would be running around trying to rescue the trapped and tend to the injured.

I'm told that this year, out in the Gulf of Mexico and off in the Atlantic, there are weather buoys floating around that broadcast their height above sea level once every thirty seconds so that the weather center in Atlanta can track any huge waves heading our way. This is something new. There have also been many brochures and fliers about what to do to anticipate a hurricane or deal with one when it comes, and there are predictions from weather officials at the beginning of the summer regarding what the odds are we might get hit with one.

Trouble is, knock wood, that for the last nine years there hasn't been a hurricane at all. Before that time, and going all the way back to the turn of the twentieth century when accurate records were first kept, there was on average one a year smacking into Long Island. Therefore, every year during the last nine years, the weather forecasters, who really can't predict hurricanes but figure the longer we go without one the more likely there is to be one, have each year predicted more and more ferocious hurricanes in ever greater numbers. Three years ago, weather forecasters began predicting at least one hurricane a year that would flood Napeague and make Montauk an island, something that has not happened since 1938. Now they are predicting three and even four major hurricanes for this year of 2003. After all, sometime it's got to average out. And so sometime there has to be more of them.

Well, here we are moving toward the end of August and, once again, there has not been a peep of bad weather out in the Atlantic. Over in west central Africa, where the hurricanes that hit us form up in little pitter-patter rain drizzles before heading west out into the Atlantic and over toward Florida, there has been nothing. It's all quiet on the eastern front. No problem. Situation normal. And there is just three weeks to go.

Now that I have written about this, we all know what is going to happen. •

Another Last Inning Heartbreaker At The Annual Artists-Writers Game

By Dan Rattiner

At three o'clock in the afternoon last Saturday, some artists, writers, entertainers, actors and filmmakers assembled on a sandlot baseball field behind the Waldbaum's Supermarket in East Hampton to play a game of softball. Several hundred sat in attendance. It was a hot sunny day that afternoon, the temperature in the mid-eighties, and as it was an annual affair between the Artists and the Writers, the wounds inflicted in last year's contest were fresh in memory. That game had gone ten innings, had been filled with controversy and lots of yelling and carrying on at the pitcher's mound, and it had only been decided in the bottom of the ninth inning by one slender run. The Writers won, 9-8.

For this reason, and for another, which involved a we've-all-pulled-together attitude and was therefore also fresh in everyone's mind — the Blackout of 2003 which had ended only that very morning — it seemed that the Artists and the Writers would be extra polite to one another this year. Writer Ken Auletta made a diving catch in the top of the first inning. "Way to go Ken," some artist on the sidelines yelled. "Great catch," yelled another. This goodwill during the contest seemed totally inappropriate given the past history of this annual game.

Scheider, unlike his persona in many of his films — shark killer, outer space hero, military officer — is an easy going pitcher.

It was not to last. But the bonhomme and good cheer carried the day early on.

The festivities got underway with a welcome speech by the longtime East Hampton Village mayor Paul Rickenbach from the pitcher's mound. Juliette Papa from WINS 1010 News introduced some guests. The "Star Spangled Banner" was sung. Comedian Chevy Chase threw out the first ball. There was a slight delay as the oh-so-tiny sex-pert Dr. Ruth Westheimer strolled down the first base line and photographers and well wishers gathered around her temporarily stopping her progress to her seat. This writer, the lead umpire of the game, seeing the paparazzi frenzy from behind the pitcher's box, held the game up for a moment while this happened. The first batter, writer George Plimpton, waited. Actor Roy Scheider, the pitcher for the Artists, also waited. Finally, it began.

Scheider, unlike his persona in many of his films — shark killer, outer space hero, military officer — is an easy going pitcher. He's relaxed and tanned. He would enjoy himself. We exchanged pleasantries. We talked about the recent Music Festival of the Hamptons. He seems to be off to

Italy again to film something. On the sidelines, I saw his wife talking pleasantly to actress Dina Merrill who was in attendance.

Plimpton seemed sort of distracted at the plate. He took a strike. Then another. They seemed easy balls to hit and I couldn't understand it. Here's a man who wrote an entire book about his experience playing pro football for the Detroit Lions. He was playing possum. Scheider laid it over again, a perfect third strike meatball and Plimpton sprang into action, lashing a hard ground ball down the third base line that proved too hot to handle. It was ruled a single. And so it began.

The Writers scored one run in the top of the first inning, I don't exactly remember how, but what I do remember clearly was a fly ball to left field late in the top of the first. The game was threatening to be blown wide open in this first inning. But now there were two out and the batter hit a high drive deep to left field. As you will see from this account later in the game, actor Alec Baldwin who was playing left field for the Artists both hit and fielded well this day, but on this blast, he misjudged it. He wandered back close to the snow fencing that served as the outfield wall and as the runners thundered around the bases, no reason to hold up with two outs, he steadied himself under it, suddenly realized he was completely in the wrong place for it and then made a spectacular dive for it, catching it in the web of his mitt just before he and it hit the ground. It was as dramatic a catch, even though it had been of his own making, as we were to see all day.

The Artists tied the game up in the bottom of the first, and through the second the politeness between the players on each team continued. I've been umpiring the game for more than twenty years and I have never seen this behavior before — and it continued on into the third, fourth fifth and even the sixth inning.

At this point, there had been only one highlight of the game that I could see and that was the towering blast of a home run by Richie Nash for the Artists, an actor from New York City who is out east this summer as part of the company of the Hamptons Shakespeare Festival. He is tall, slender and in his late twenties and when he hits the ball, which he sure did in the bottom of the third, he gets everything behind it. The ball is going to be a homerun. Or it is going to smack somebody in the stomach and cause a delay while an ambulance is called. What was unknown by anybody at the game, but which I learned later at a Shakespeare Festival benefit in Montauk that evening at which Nash performed was that a few years ago, he had been a semi-pro baseball player.

The top of the seventh went by, the Writers had remained scoreless, and as the Artists trotted off the field, trailing 6 to 3, I didn't really think that in the few innings that remained, much was going to happen to spice things up. Good will continued to prevail. All was well.

I should mention at this point a little history about the game. It was first played — an event lost in the mists of time and remembered only blurrily by a few survivors — in 1948, when a game started in Syd Solomon's backyard in the Springs. Willem de Kooning played. At one point, somebody threw a grapefruit to the plate, which was smashed in one sticky explosion with a bat — something that has been done in almost every game since at one time or another. But the official scorekeep-

Pulling The Plug

They Say The Blackout Started In Cleveland, But It's Just Not True

By Dan Rattiner

The articles that appear in Dan's Papers every Friday don't just magically assemble themselves into a newspaper every week. We here at the office actually hold a meeting once a week about what articles we want to put in. It takes place at 5 p.m. on a Thursday in the glass room at the front of our Bridgehampton office building and at that time, if you drive by on the Montauk Highway, you will be able to see us sitting around this white table listening attentively to one person after another, who came to the meeting to explain to us why we should put what they have to say in our newspaper. Some of them grovel at our feet as they plead their case. Others weep and wail and tear the hair out of their heads as they try to get us to mention the upcoming fundraiser they are planning, or the upcoming surfing competition they intend to easily win.

Well, that's not right. Actually what we do is sit around and read all the other newspapers that come out to see what they wrote about. Then we rip out articles that we like, fold them up and put them into a bottle and pick a few out. And then that's what we write about.

Usually, at four thirty, half an hour before this much anticipated meeting, people are already pacing around outside the glass room, anxiously thinking about how it will go. As for me, the editor, strip on my desk, twisting it around my fingers, when suddenly my hand slipped and I accidentally pulled the lamp wire out of the electrical socket. And all the power in my office went off. Including who I was talking to on the telephone.

The bulbs in the lamps on my desk were all still on, but very dim. Maybe five watts was all. And they were slowly fading.

It was quite dramatic. One minute the air conditioner was humming, all the lights were burning and the computer screen was glowing and the next minute, after a thump from the air conditioner, there was silence. I looked at the plug. And I looked at the electrical outlet. I knew exactly what had happened.

Lise, my assistant, came in from her office.

"All the power went off in my room," she said.

I tried using the intercom. It wasn't working. And I noticed something exceedingly strange. The bulbs in the lamps on my desk were all still on, but very dim. Maybe five watts was all. And they were slowly fading. I thought I heard one of them hissing.

"The power has gone out in the entire Northeast," I said.

I am upstairs in my private office, usually on the telephone, talking to important people about this and that, wondering what will shortly transpire down below. And so there I was on Thursday, August 14, on the telephone, when, quite suddenly, this weird thing happened. I was on the phone with somebody at a hotel in Montauk, fiddling as I sometimes do with a lamp cord which plugs into a

Someone came bounding up the stairs.

"All the power's out downstairs. The server is down. All the computers are down."

"This is the blackout of 2003," I said.

The lights were hissing and sputtering. The death throes of what was left of the electricity slowly leaking out.

"Run next door and see if they have power," Lise said.

The person ran off.

"It's no use," I said.

A few minutes later, two people came bounding up the stairs. One had gone on an expedition to the west, the other had gone on an expedition to the east. Both were reporting back about our immediate neighbors, the Bridgehampton Country Market and the Architectural Archaeology store.

"There's no electricity at either store," one said.

"And the traffic light is dark," said the other.

Slowly we learned the truth. There was no power in Water Mill. There was no power in Sag Harbor. A passing motorist said there were no lights in Amagansett. We were blind men examining an elephant. Now it was a quarter to five.

"I think we should send everybody home," the office manager said after taking the stairs up two at a time.

"It's the whole Northeast," I said. "This is the Blackout of 2003. Is everybody here for the editorial meeting?"

Several writers were now in my office, which was, at this point, in the absence of a working air conditioner, growing hot and stuffy. It was ninety-two degrees outside. "I just came to get my assignment," said one of the writers. "I have to be at the Ross School to listen to a food writer."

"There will be no food writer at the Ross School," I said. "It will be cancelled. This is the Blackout of 2003. The entire Northeast."

I wiggled the end of the electrical cord at this person. "Everything is going to be cancelled. Except for our editorial meeting."

The glass room, our usual spot on the first floor, I knew, would be impossible without its air conditioner and its lights. We couldn't have an editorial meeting there.

On the second floor, however, at the end of the hallway at the top of the stairs, there is a glass door that leads out onto a roof deck above the first floor. There is lawn furniture out there — a glass-topped table, a market umbrella, five padded chairs. A chaise lounge. All of this is just under the lower branches and leaves of several maple trees. It's a shady spot. Moist and cool. And so, I led everybody out there, grumbling and complaining. We sat down around the table. The leaves rustled in a gentle cool breeze. People spread out their papers. "Now first let's discuss what's coming up this weekend," I said.

When you are up high outdoors like this, especially on a busy street, you can see and hear everything. The traffic was backing up in both directions at this point, and the engine noise was almost unbearable. People were shouting at one another up here and people were shouting at one another from behind their steering wheels. It was still light outside, but all these people it seemed had been spooked into their cars, the only things that would go. Now they were going, they knew not where, and they were panic stricken. And they were listening to their car radios.

"Anybody hear anything?" somebody asked up on the roof.

"I can't hear anything."

"I can hear a car radio," somebody else said. "They're saying New York City is blacked out. And Toronto."

I felt this immense sorrow.

And then we heard the crash of two cars coming together down toward Starbucks. That's what happens when the traffic light goes out. In moments, there was the sounds of a police siren. We discussed a ballet that was scheduled for that evening.

"Cancelled," I said wearily. I knew.

Now there was another crash and another group of sirens. An ambulance went ripping by. Alarms were sounding. People were shouting. How do people in cars deal with things when all the traffic lights are down?

"What else is going on?" I asked.

"Roger Rosenblatt is speaking at Fridays at Five at the library," somebody said.

"That will be cancelled," I cried.

There was another crash and another sound of sirens.

"People are killing each other all over the place," I wailed.

The sound bounces in amazing ways off the road. People talk about the dark sky club, about not having bright lights on the streets after dark. I am here to tell you, we are all here to tell you that here in our little resort towns, it is amazing that birds in trees can hear anything at all. Certainly, other people sitting in the open air on porches on the second floor know the deafening sound of civi-

PROTECTING THE HOMELAND SECURITY TELEPHONE

Phone Phun

Calling LIPA, Homeland Security, The Senate, Millstone And Places In Between

By Jerry Cimisi

As a reporter, one has to call official agencies. But sometimes – or more often than sometimes – there is much difficulty in calling there from here.

For instance, I was trying to get in touch with Homeland Security. It was easy enough to get the number from Verizon, but it was impossible to get a live person on the phone at this new super agency that is supposed to oversee the terrorist threat.

Just like when you call a thousand other places, you are presented with a menu: 1) To forward a comment or suggestion; 2) the mailing address for Homeland Security – I guess that's what the Unabomber would press; 3) Employment; 4) Scheduling request; 5) Opportunities to support Homeland Security locally.

This last item seemed the most intriguing. But when I pressed No. 5, all I got was a fax number. It seems that Homeland could not even put a voice on that end. If you fax something about yourself, I guess they check you out and decide whether to get back to you or not.

But if I made only a mechanical connection with Homeland Security, that was more than I got (at least at first) when I tried to call two senators. I was looking into how a certain Department of Defense Project had gotten through the budget. So I called information and asked for Senate Minority Leader Tom Daschle's Washington office.

"There is no listing for Senator Daschle in Washington," I was told.

On the second try I was back at the embassy. I repeated the number I had been given. "That's the right number... but you've got the Taiwanese Embassy."

This didn't seem possible. I said, "Let me have Senator Ted Stevens." Stevens, a senator from Alaska, is on the Senate Appropriations Committee.

"You want his number in Alaska?"

"No, in Washington."

"I have no number for him in Washington."

"Every senator has an office in Washington."

"Would you like my supervisor?"

"Yes."

The supervisor comes on. He repeats what to me is an impossible fact: no listings for any senators. Perhaps they're trying to hide from us.

"Just give me the number for the Senate."

There was a pause. Then: "I don't have a listing for the Senate."

This was getting really absurd. But, abruptly, a ray of hope: "I have a listing for the House."

Well, I got that – and, you figure, the House of Representatives gave me the number for the Senate. But no; I dial (though we don't really dial anymore, do we?) that number, and a pleasant, accented woman's voice says, "Taiwanese Embassy."

I apologized for dialing the wrong number. But on the second try I was back at the embassy. I repeated the number I had been given. "That's the right number," she said, "but you've got the Taiwanese Embassy."

She laughed when I told her how I had taken this circuitous route through Information. "Last week we got two calls for the State Department," she said.

I had the brief thought that perhaps Homeland Security was trying to confuse potential terrorists from even calling government officials, but of course that would have been too ludicrous. Right?

Anyway, the Taiwanese woman, as I assume

she was Taiwanese, put me through to the congressional department of the embassy and it was from them I got the number of the Senate. So if you want to call the House or Senate call the Taiwanese Embassy first. Though I don't know if I should give you the number. Ask Verizon. Then again, if you asked for that embassy maybe you'd get another one, or some group like Kurds in Exile. Anyway, just figure somebody in Washington has the number.

Then I was calling LIPA after the blackout. There was no administration department listed in the phone book, just billing — figures. I called billing. If LIPA was still trying to get everyone on line, the billing department was there. They gave me a 516 number to call. I call, get a voice mail that says, "I'm not at my desk," etc. For media inquiries I should call such and such a number. I do. There is admonishing tone at the other end: "If you are under 18 hang up immediately."

Well, I'm over 18 so I don't. In another instant, a voice of sexy affectation begins to whisper into the phone.

Laughing, I hang up. OK, so I dialed the wrong number. But when I dial again, there's the warning and there's the voice. I'm a little annoyed. Am I going to be charged $10 a half minute for this? Is it going to appear on my phone bill that I'm some kind of soft-porn deviant? I'm feeling too frustrated to call back the number that gave me the phone sex number. But when someone from the number where I had left a message does call back and I tell her what happened (maybe it's the same woman, in her other job) she laughs and gives me another area code attached to the same number. (No, I'm not going to give you the phone sex number. Call LIPA.)

What else? I was also trying to call the Millstone Nuclear facility after the blackout. Millstone is the nuclear plant right across the Sound from the North Fork. It's on the shores of Waterford, Connecticut. It's had more than a few problems since the mid-'90s, has been shut down by the Nuclear Regulatory Commission and reopened to much public protest.

At any rate, I got Millstone's number and, when I called, got neither the Iraqi Consulate nor Larry Flynt's campaign headquarters but Millstone itself. The problem was, any caller had to know the name of a distinct person he or she was calling. You were offered the company menu of names. You could punch in a name, or say it. I tried, variously, "Press Officer," "Media Representative," and so forth, but a mechanical voice kept coming back and saying, "There is no such name listed. And when I pressed "O" for Operator no one came on: "That is an invalid listing..."

It wasn't until I searched the Internet, found a quote from a Millstone spokesman — Peter Hyde — and then called once more, punched in his name, got a voice mail, left a message, and did get called back, that I got to talk to someone. The telephone certainly is convenient.

Last week, I had the opportunity to interview a Smothers. That's half a Smothers Brothers to you, as in Tommy Smothers. He and his brother Dick will be in performance at the Westhampton Beach Performing Arts Center on August 23.

I asked him how they got started.

"Basically, we were in choir, we sang in school and we had a band. We also sang in a barber-shop quartet. This was at the Redondo Union High School. A couple of things got us started with our career. For one thing, I became interested in groups such as the Kingston Trio, which was popular at the time, and they would talk to the audience while they prepared for the next number. I also loved listening to a particular TV personality, George Gobel, a little guy with a crew cut who spoke softly and never told jokes but had people rolling in the aisles. This was in the early 1960s."

"Why was he funny?" I asked.

"That is what I wanted to know. I watched some Laurel and Hardy movies. And what I saw was that there was all this space and air in their routines. It wasn't fast. It was all about timing. And George Gobel had timing, too. So I began talking during our show. And it was funny."

Did he remember any routines from either Laurel and Hardy or George Gobel?

"This was George Gobel. 'The other day I realized someone had stolen my bowling ball. So I called the police and they sent somebody over. From there, we went down to the precinct where they asked me all these questions. What color is it? Black, I said. Black and some brown. Any other identifying characteristics? It has three holes in it, I said. Are the holes on the top or the bottom?'"

Tom and Dick Smothers were born in New York and raised in California. Three years younger than his brother, Tom was a gymnast in school and Dick ran track. But when the elder Smothers was just finishing up college at San Jose State, Tom, who was attending the same school, decided to take a semester off to perform with his brother. They had already begun to create a sensation in San Francisco, beginning with their debut at The Purple Onion in 1959.

"I finished two and a half years of college before we decided I should take that semester off. What could I lose? We'd give it six months. Either we would make it or we wouldn't."

They made it.

The Smothers Brothers made their national television debut in 1961 on the Jack Paar

Show. In the early years they sang songs that satirized folk music. Or rather, they would start to sing songs, and then Tommy, who plays a sort of dumb but crafty younger brother (on stage, not in real life), would pretend to screw up. He'd forget the words. Or he would sing funnier words. Older brother Dick, the straight man, would scowl at him. Tommy would say something even dumber and wilder. The crowds loved it.

In 1967 they were offered their own TV variety show on CBS. People loved the Smothers Brothers because the show hit home. Probably half the people in the country had an older brother in the family who picked on a younger brother and got away with it. The Smothers Brothers would become the most popular show on TV in its day, much as Seinfeld did more recently. And then the roof fell in.

"We had been on CBS for three years," Tommy said. "The folk music scene had faded and the country had waded into the war in Vietnam. Now there was a huge anti-war movement and many people, us among them, began to write satire about it. We'd have people performing on our one-hour variety show for about fifty minutes and we'd do our regular routine in the intervals, which now included songs about the war. We wrote silly little songs like 'Draft Dodger Blues,' for instance. But apparently, we weren't allowed to satirize the administration or its policies. That third year, suddenly, CBS cancelled us."

If the government felt that canceling this show would effectively gag the Smothers Brothers' opposition to the war, they were very mistaken. It was obvious to many people at the time that this was an order that must have come down from the Nixon administration. And so, all the cancellation did was make the Smothers Brothers national heroes. They would appear as frequent guests on other shows and receive standing ovations.

"Now, it feels like everything is happening all over again," Tommy said. "The administration can't be criticized. It's like treason. Commentators who do speak up, like Howard K. Smith with his program 'The Political Obituary of Richard Nixon,' are marginalized to cable networks. And if they speak up anyway, they get trashed."

From that day to this, the Smothers Brothers have performed together on TV, on the road, in concert halls. They have been honored with one of the entertainment industry's most coveted awards, a star on the Hollywood Walk of Fame, and were presented in July with the "George Carlin Freedom of Expression Award." They were also inducted into the Hollywood Bowl of Fame, along with actors Nathan Lane and Patty Lupone, this past June. Their show next week in Westhampton Beach follows an appearance in Florida and precedes a three-week engagement in Las Vegas.

"At the Hollywood Bowl we performed, as did the two other winners, a short fifteen-minute routine. It was wonderful," Tom said. "And six months ago, a documentary was made about the canceling of our show all those years ago and the censorship that was involved. The documentaries had access to a file of recently released White House papers. It was called 'Smothered.' It ran on Bravo and was very successful. You can rent it at almost any video store."

"What is your show like now?" I asked.

"Well, I can tell you this. Everybody who comes leaves the theater feeling good. About thirty percent of our show is songs — people will be surprised we sing so well. We do 'Impossible Dream,' and some folk tunes and maybe a madrigal. It's pretty varied. And then about midway through the show we do Yo-Yo Man. We also do a 12-minute segment, a slide show, called family scrapbook to prove we really are brothers."

Yo-Yo Man is a new addition to the show, relatively new, in which Tommy Smothers shows off his skill with a yo-yo and a golf ball. He can hit a ball into a cup with a yo-yo. And brother Dick does the commentary.

"Dickie is the Voice of Yo," Tommy said.

In addition to their performing — they do about 130 shows a year — the brothers have gone about creating more normal lives. Each has married. Tommy has three children and lives in Sonoma County, California. Dick lives in Sarasota, also in northern California but a little closer to San Francisco, and is married and has eleven children.

Some years ago, Dick bought four acres of property in Santa Cruz and with Tommy created the Smothers Brothers Winery. It prospered. Now Tommy runs it, having moved it to a fifty-acre site in the town of Kenwood in Sonoma. Their wines are some of the finer ones released under the label Remick Ridge — named for the brothers' grandfather — made in California.

"We see each other socially from time to time. We also have a sister who lives in Saratoga. But mostly we meet up for these shows, flying separately to some central location and then going off together on tour."

Dick is a fitness buff who loves to cook. Tom is passionate about golf and enjoys spending time among the grapes at Remick Ridge. They tour together and then return to their respective families. It's a good life.

Come see one of the most successful and beloved teams in the history of comedy at Westhampton Beach on August 23.

By Susan Whitney Simm

Arthur Herzog is an award-winning novelist, non-fiction writer and journalist. He was born in New York City in 1927, but his family moved to Tucson when he was nine. His mother suffered from severe arthritis and the move, it was hoped, would improve her health.

"The family joke, when I was growing up," said Arthur during a recent interview, "was that I went to Tucson for arthritis and I wasn't going to leave until I got it."

The son of a well-known songwriter father — he wrote "God Bless the Child," which brought both writer and singer Billy Holiday instant acclaim — and the grandson of the first Freudian female therapist in the United States, Arthur remembers that he and his two brothers were psychoanalyzed and tested extensively as children. A score of 168 on an IQ test at the age of six left Arthur so intrigued with the concept of IQ that he would write a best-selling novel, IQ 83, on the topic nearly 40 years later.

When Arthur reached his early 20s, about the time he graduated from Stanford University, his grandmother gave him a series of aptitude tests to help him determine what direction he might take professionally. He scored a record high on a test that measured "ideaphoria," the ability to produce ideas quickly.

"I knew from an early age that I wanted to be a writer," said Arthur. "My parents were not happy about this, my father had had such a hard time. But he also joined the communist party, which added to his trouble, though he wasn't very fervent. Anyway, I took that test because my mother was trying to get me to do something else. When I asked what I should do with my score, they said I should go into advertising. I never considered it. My parents were delighted, however, after I started publishing."

Arthur has been writing since he was a teenager. In high school he wrote a story called "Thank God Cows Don't Fly," about the killing of Gila Monsters in the desert. "People thought that they were poisonous, which they weren't. They were being wiped out. I tried to help the underdog, or in this case, underlizard."

After graduating from Stanford, Arthur moved back to New York and enrolled in Columbia University's graduate program for English literature. There he wrote a master's thesis entitled "Revolt in Utopia," which explored the ideas of optimism and pessimism in the work of H.G. Wells.

"What I loved in Wells' The Time Machine and The Shape of Things to Come was their imaginative quality," Arthur told Mensa Magazine in an article published earlier this year. Wells had also trained as a biologist, and this grounding in

"We haven't got smarter since 1978... We are still in thrall to pop culture, which I find boring because it offers no challenges to the intellect."

science had a great effect on his work that wasn't lost on Arthur.

In the 60s, Arthur became a freelance journalist for The New York Times, writing 18 articles in one year alone that were published in the paper's Sunday edition. This caught the attention of Times Magazine editor Lester Markel, who offered him a full time job.

"Come and work for me and I guarantee you'll become managing editor of the Times, Markel said. I said I'd think about it. So I'm walking through the newsroom and the place was so gray, so overwhelmingly gray, that I said thank you very much but I think I'll pass. He was incredulous. I wanted to write books. I figured they have a longer shelf life than newspaper stories."

During Arthur's tenure as a journalist he was sent on assignment to Angola by the Times, the London Observer and True Magazine, and got scared out of his wits. "But the people were wonderful," he said. "They asked me to become their general. I was very tempted, but if I had accepted I wouldn't be sitting here talking to you today." He also got arrested three times in what was then The Congo for supposedly being a Belgian spy.

Arthur began his career as an author with non-fiction. His first book, published in 1969, was The War-Peace Establishment, a prophetic look at ways to avoid the recurrence of a cold war. He then turned to fiction and wrote The Swarm, the first of many novels, which was published in 1974 and made into a movie four years later. It's about the attack of savage killer bees that literally blot out the sun as they spread across the United States. The book was a best-seller, but the movie, in Arthur's opinion, was "a flop."

Orca, another successful novel, was published in 1977 and also made into a movie. "The book was much better than the movie," said Arthur, "but I liked Dino DeLaurentis. He read the first paragraph of the book, which had the word f—k in it, and he said, 'This is disgusting.' But I liked him anyway."

During most of the 70s Arthur lived with feminist/author Betty Friedan in what Betty called a "commune." But the end of the decade found everyone breaking up and setting out to buy houses. Arthur met a man at a cocktail party who was going through a divorce and selling his house in the Hamptons. Arthur bought the house, which sits on two acres south of the highway in Wainscott, sight unseen. He still owns it today, living there with his wife, author/businesswoman Leslie Mandel, whom he met in 1981. Sitting poolside in the sun, I ask him if he thinks the Hamptons have changed a lot since the early 80s.

"Not really. It was a charming place then and it is a charming place now. The roads are better, but there are more houses, and more cops, that's

The Sheltered Islander By Sally Flynn

Observations Of An Islander #262 Black Out

Wasn't that black out fun? I spent it developing an extensive appreciation for Willis Carrier, the man who invented air conditioning. God bless him wherever he is.

Without even a fan, I developed an appreciation for the siesta. In the absence of fans or air conditioning, the only sane thing to do in sweltering heat is to lie perfectly still on your bed, which should be placed in the middle of the front or backyard, under a shady tree. You lie there spread eagle, in hope of a breeze.

The situation of being trapped without any possible relief from the heat, unless you move into your pool, also renews your religious convictions as you pray for electricity to run any cooling device. To the old adage, "There are no atheists in foxholes" I would like to add, "There are no atheists in New York in August." I always thought Native Americans did rain dances to water the crops. No, in New York, in August, they danced for rain to break the heat! And they didn't wear a lot of clothes either. I thought it was because they didn't know how to make them. No! They covered the essentials, added a few feathers for decoration and went shopping.

I think we can all agree now that August in New York should be a "clothing optional month." The only thing you need to take along with you is a folded towel to cover any chair you might sit on, otherwise the humidity will cause your flesh to bond with the chair and you have to do that careful peel-off maneuver where you rock from one side to the other using your hand to pull your flesh off the chair. Or worse, you sit in one of those metal grid chairs that make your entire backside look like a giant Belgian waffle. I don't mind the cold of winter, because I can always add clothes or break up furniture to make a fire if the electric is off, but I can't take off any more once I've hit skin and there's nothing I can do to make ice.

How on earth did our relatives survive before fans and air conditioning? Remember all the clothes our foremothers wore? Imagine wearing all those clothes in New York, in August, no fan, no a/c, no deodorant... no wonder they all "had the vapors" and passed out. I bet very few people were born in May before the advent of a/c. It was just too miserable to do anything — especially that.

The insufferable conditions might have been sufferable except for the fact that there was absolutely nothing on TV! I mean nothin'! None of my channels came in at all. Although people have told me I've been missing several channels for awhile now, I thought at least EWTN would make it through, there had to be an Emergency Novena in progress somewhere. Naturally, without a/c, TV or even a phone, I turned to my computer to access a chat room at UselessGripping.com, but even my computer was lifeless. I flipped the mouse over and tapped on its ball, hoping a little CPR would help, but nothing. It was then that I realized this electrical blackout effected everything!

No TV, no A/C, no phone, no computer. There was only one thing to do. I drove to Wades Beach; there was water right next to the beach. But who cares about water? There was an ice cream truck that came by. A self-contained freezer unit. I could buy all the ice cream, give it out and climb into the freezer. I felt cooler just knowing I had a plan.

When I arrived at Wades, there were many people milling about with large amounts of cash in their hands. "What's with the cash?" I asked one gal. "We're buying all the ice cream, giving it the kids and climbing in the freezer," she said. Realizing my brilliant plan had been foiled, I headed home and dressed for success in the lack of current situation.

Sitting on the front lawn in a beach chair, I was wearing an oven mitt and two walnut shells. A man bicycled by and yelled out, "Nice oven mitt!" I looked at him and yelled, "Thanks. Hey, nice tube sock!" I guess that's one benefit of an electrical blackout, you see much more of your neighbors.

Spiritual Awareness

One of the reasons why I enjoy reporting on the Hamptons year-round, is I get the opportunity to meet and interview a diverse group of people that live or visit the East End. From music legends like Billy Joel to political figures like Senator Hillary Rodham Clinton, the Hamptons attracts all kinds of fascinating people. I recently caught up with Harvard Grad, Dr. Mehmet Oz who is the host, of a new health series on The Discovery Channel called Second Opinion coming this fall. I was very impressed by Dr. Oz. Besides the fact that Dr. Oz is a New York award winning heart surgeon who has saved many lives using his Holistic, East meets West approach to physical and mental overall wellness, he is extremely dedicated and passionate about educating the public and sharing his life experiences.

Dr. Oz is big on stress relievers such as yoga, simple stretching everyday, the list goes on, but his big tip is, "The basic rule is no white in your diet." I hate to say it, but that includes sushi (white rice). Dr. Oz goes on, "The word doctor means teacher, that's our role. I have to help educate you, but ultimately you are going to know more about the problems that will limit your life," said Oz. "In my show, you are going to see what real organs look like, you are going to see real surgery. We have great computer graphics to bring alive what's happening inside of your body, and we also have some great celebrities. My first guest is Oprah Winfrey." Atlantic Records founder, Ahmet Ertegun, who's worked with many legendary artists over the years including, Ray Charles, Aretha Franklin, Wilson Pickett, Sonny & Cher, Bette Midler, Led Zeppelin, and The Rolling Stones, hosted the event at his Southampton estate to benefit FACT, Dr. Oz's foundation.

Dr. Oz quickly filled me in on his organization, "FACT, is the Foundation for the Advancement of Cardiac Therapies. FACT is a group dedicated to changing the way we think about the heart. In addition to Hi-Tech surgery, we seek to use low-tech solutions that holistically look at the heart to identify new breakthroughs. Practices that attack the stress before it attack the body. These procedures can help stop people from dying from heart disease, which is the leading cause of death in both men and woman." Ahmet Ertegun is one of Dr. Oz's patients, and after surviving several successful heart surgeries, he told me, "Dr. Oz saved my life!" Dr. Oz has an impressive group of supporters. An Hour To Kill, author, Karin Yapalater, is also a big believer. Karin told me, "I don't see it as a new message, but an important one. Medicine and the philosophies of spirituality need to be married and need to come together, because when people stress themselves out they make themselves sick and they can also make themselves well. Richard Stolley, founder of People Magazine shared, "If you are treating your body the way you should treat it, your not

A Filmmaker's Diary...
David Nemer, Donald Pruden and Keif Roberts just completed shooting their debut feature film, "Fallout," at Pinewood West Studios in East Hampton from July 21-August.

10. The following is David's ongoing diary of the making of the film.

Saturday, August 16, 11:15 a.m. - We finished shooting a week ago today, and now I'm understanding the post-production depression that David Ott warned me would come. Maybe I was too wrapped up worrying about finishing the shoot to consider it earlier. But now that it's over, the after-affect is here, and it's starting to overstay its welcome like a stiff-haired, red-tanned muscle guy trying to buy a girl a drink.

I definitely knew beforehand that Sunday would be a tough and emotional day, as we cleaned out the studio and house and said our good-byes then. But I didn't really realize what it would feel like re-entering life again — whether getting used to seven hours of sleep or remembering how many scoops to put in the coffeemaker. My deep appreciation goes especially to my boss, Lou Avignone, for his patience with the blank looks I've given him all this week when he asks questions I could've rattled off answers to just a month ago. Instead, I sit at my desk now feeling like the Diet Coke can when Clinton was deposed — still in the center of the action but just watching the world go on around me. For what it's worth, it seems to be affecting more than just me, though.

Shay called on Monday and said that he started watching the hours and hours of videotape he took — including the private diaries we shot on his camcorder — as a way of easing the separation angst. I also spoke with Zev, who's now in Colorado getting some R&R and riding horses, and Fred, who quickly got a gig in New Jersey for the television show, "Ed." Marc Cato will probably begin creating his next painted masterpiece and showcasing his work, Christian was headed to Iceland to visit a friend and then out to L.A. to work on "Cops," and Georgia Gruzen is slowly packing up for her senior year at Cornell. It's worth saying now, by the way, that Georgia single-handedly made our weekly ads in Dan's pay off. She came into the studio our first day, asked about working with us, and by the end of the third week, was calling shots on the set, handling props and giving direction. Not to mention, she busted up "the boys' club" with style.

On Tuesday, Donald and I spoke during work hours for the first time, which was very weird because we were both so used to talking many times a day during pre-production about pressing issues we faced. I can't explain how much more interesting and exciting that was than asking him how things are going back at the New York State Insurance Fund. At least I take heart in knowing that the battles we had every day with each other during production are behind us. The best surprise this week came

Thursday night when Bengt called while vacationing with his brother and sister-in-law in Puerto Rico. I thought maybe he was checking in to see if everyone was alright following the power outage, but he really just wanted to say hi and re-connect. We took turns starting out sentences with "Hey, remember the time we..." and I don't think either of us even considered responding, "Of course I remember, you idiot. It was just last week." The hardest transition, though, seems to be for Keif, who in one week's time went from having his screenplay take a major step towards becoming a movie to stepping back behind the checkout counter at Border's. I could hear the heaviness in his voice and the familiar ringing in the background when we spoke, interrupted only by customers who had trouble finding the 80-foot Harry Potter display.

What's helped me deal the most with the post-production drag is the reality that Donald and I really need to find an editor. We long ago decided that our goal is to have a rough-cut of the film by September 30, with the thought that we'd enter it into Sundance before the October 4 deadline. We could then continue to work on a finished version, and should the film happen to get accepted, submit it before the festival rolls around in February. The tricky part, though, clearly is trying to come up with a rough cut in this short of a time window. I'm currently talking with four editors who stand equal chances of getting it done (i.e. desperately remote). We'd like to make a decision within the next three days and then hope for the best.

In a delightful juxtaposition Dr. Mehmet Oz, voted New York magazine's sexiest man in 2002, met Dr. Ruth Westheimer, renowned sex therapist, at the Hamptons launch for SONG airways. It was an enormous success attended by hundreds of guests at Naturopathica holistic spa and Dr. Oz's Foundation for the Advancement of Cardiac Therapies was the beneficiary.

Marvin and Susan Numeroff, owners of Patagonia West restaurant in Westhampton Beach, were so blown away by international pop star Angelique Kidjo's performance at Westhampton Beach Performing Arts Center (WHB PAC) on Friday night that they invited Kidjo and her musicians back to the restaurant for dinner after the show.

KRIS DALENE 1982-2003

By David Lion Rattiner

Death is one of the strangest issues that any human being has to confront. It makes you think about the meaning of life, it makes you think about your own mortality, it makes you cry. I have experienced two people in my life that I knew fairly well that have died. The first was my grandfather, who died of old age. The second was Kris Dalene, who died last week on Wednesday, August 13. He was a friend of mine from East Hampton High School, he was 21.

I don't really know what I am doing while I am writing this, but it has to come out of me. I want to tell you how I knew Kris and why he was such a great guy. I want to tell you that I know how to reverse this tragedy. I want to tell you that I know how to turn back time and take him away from his car on Wednesday where according to my friends, he fell asleep at the wheel near the Lobster Inn on Route 27 in Southampton. I can't do this for him, however. Time has passed and he is no longer alive. But he has to be in my opinion, somewhere and he is okay. I believe that he is okay.

Kris and I sang in chorus together in high school, which is primarily how I knew him. A lot of the things that he did in high school I did as well. Kris, who stood around six feet three and was two-hundred pounds, was a musician. He loved music, he loved acting and he loved the drums. He was really, really good at the drums. Everyone in our class knew him for that.

Chorus class was always fun and a lot of the reason had to do with Kris. He was a bass, I was a bass, but his range certainly could go as high as a tenor. He was always cracking jokes before chorus. We would always talk about last Saturday's Saturday Night Live before class would start. Kris loved the celebrity Jeopardy skits; we all would talk about the scene, impersonating all of the different jokes. Chorus would start,

To that end, we wouldn't even be able to consider a September 30 deadline if it weren't for Lou and Jim Farrell, two good friends and associates at Uncle Wally's Muffins, who both recently invested the money for us to get it done. Lou and Jim visited us during production — Lou to check on his initial investment, and Jim to consider making one — and I was happy they both liked what they saw enough to help keep pushing this forward. It probably didn't hurt that Uncle Wally's Muffins became the official food of the "Fallout" shoot, and it actually helps me tremendously to work with two guys who have a real connection to this part of my life.

Anyway, at the end of the day, the nostalgia I'm feeling now is balanced with the urgency of plowing ahead to turn "Fallout" into a movie. As for the friends I've worked with and made over the past few weeks... I look forward to our screening party as soon as we're ready, and truly hope this isn't the last time we work together on a project. Even if it means drinking bad coffee for a week or so afterwards.

we all would sing, we would sing our hearts out. We would sing until our heads hurt. Kris always got an A in chorus.

One of the coolest things I thought that Kris did was drumming in a band called Leap of Faith. It was by far the most serious band in the school and everyone knew about it. He was the youngest guy in the band and his passion for the band and the drums glowed inside of him. Everyone knew that eventually Kris was going to be a star. His CD was all over the school. Everyone was buying the CD and everyone was talking about it. Nobody else in the school had their own CD that they were selling except for Kris. People would buy it without even listening to it first because they all just really liked Kris. He was one of those guys that was hard not to like. He was one of those guys that everyone aspired to be like. He was a role model for everyone at the school. Freshmen would want to learn how to play the drums, he would not hesitate to teach them. Somebody needed a lift home, he would not hesitate to offer a ride. He was an all around good person. It is so unbelievably strange to me that he is not around anymore. I just don't understand this.

There was a service for him down at Wyborg's beach in East Hampton. It felt like everyone in the town came together. His family extends out to more and touches more than a thousand people. Everyone who lives out in East Hampton to Montauk, knows the Dalenes and knows they are a great family. They are our softball coaches, our little league coaches, and our bake sale bakers. One of the finest families out here.

A ceremony was held for him. Old chorus friends sang "Amazing Grace" on the beach while his best friends swam out on their surfboards into the ocean. It was a great thing that they did for him and also brought so many people together that needed to be together during a time of deep sadness. A sadness that nobody should have to experience.

Think of Kris when you sing. Think of him when you play the drums. Think of him when you hug your Mom or your Dad. Please remember that we are all mortals and to be careful while driving. That's all I have to say.

BREAKING NEWS

In what is believed to be a first, police raided four restaurants on one evening last week and sent patrons fleeing. The rumors flying around are that these were drug raids or food violation raids, but they were nothing of the sort. They were raids conducted because the restaurants were simply too popular and too many prospective patrons came and were hanging about and checking in and sitting or standing outside and generally exceeding the maximum allowable occupancy.

All this came about because the food is good at these restaurants, and so we proudly name them. Jean-Luc East, Bamboo and the Blue Parrot.

All this also came about because there are more and more people in the Hamptons than there ever were before and the number of restaurants simply is not keeping up. Because of the imbalance, the Town Board is considering a law to require that all residents eat only two meals a day until further notice. The third meal ban will continue until new restaurants are put into place. This new proposal is not passed just yet and there will be hearing about it next Tuesday. It will take place right after the Town Board comes back from what used to be their lunch break.

for sure."

Arthur has twenty-five books in total to his credit, all of which have been reprinted by and are available through Barnes and Noble. Aside from The War Peace Establishment, The B.S. Factor: Faking It in America (1973) and Vesco: From Wall Street to Castro's Cuba (1987), which chronicles the rapid rise and fall of financier Robert Vesco in the 70s, are Arthur's most well-known works. (In fact, Leslie located Vesco, who was living as a fugitive, when Arthur was in the process of researching his book.)

What inspired him to write The B.S. Factor?

"I thought that a lot of things were bullshit at the time, and I think it's the same now, only worse. I have a funny ability. I can predict things. Recently, I was watching a show on TV about a murder, about a man that led two lives, whose wife was killed by carbon monoxide poisoning. I had just written a book about that, it's called The Master of Disaster."

How do you explain this uncanny ability?

"Luck. Really. But I find that you can get better as you get older. The B.S. Factor is still relevant, even though I would change some things now."

Arthur doesn't believe that just because someone is an expert in a given field that he or she automatically has the credibility to speak on any topic. He attributes this, what he considers an unfortunate trend, partly to cable TV.

"I think that cable is a horror. It's disgraceful. They [the commentators] are so unreliable and the expertise so thin and exaggerated." Arthur predicted 25 years ago, in his novel IQ 83, which

review: roger rosenblatt

By Lise Visser

Roger Rosenblatt spoke of his latest book, Anything Can Happen: Notes on My Inadequate Life and Yours, as part of the Fridays at Five series behind the Hampton Library in Bridgehampton last week. Partly obscured by a podium set among the hydrangeas the speaker went to his work with spirited humor and impeccable delivery. Anything Can Happen was inspired from Prof. Rosenblatt's experience at the Writer's Conference at Long Island University Southampton College, where the participating authors (such as Margaret Attwood) and playwrights attend one another's lectures.

John Guerre's play, Lidie Breeze, was performed at the college's Avram Theater in July of last year with Kathleen Turner, Alan Alda and Roy Scheider. The play discusses "the most horrid fact about living. Anything can happen." Prof. Rosenblatt's latest work brings this "from its breeziest to its deadliest interpretation."

He read selections from the book, beginning with My Bear, the polar bear that "has something to do with my innermost fears..." and who appeared "some years ago... when, for lack of sleep, I came downstairs for a snack of Jell-O..."

Then in On Your Conduct at the Dinner Party "one by one, heads turned away from you in boredom, disgust, or bafflement, leaving you to tration — if funny in retrospect — is when you keep getting calls for someone who had your number before you did. We changed our number last August. Immediately we were getting calls for a certain Ishmael. There were obviously a lot of bill collectors — it seemed Ishmael skipped town owing a lot of money. There were also apparently personal calls. Ishmael didn't tell his friends he was leaving either.

Every caller, creditor or acquaintance, pronounced his name a little differently. I wasn't sure if it was like Moby Dick's Ishmael. People yourself at the table. Well done." On the nature of relationships: "if I stand before you, you're safe from me, I'm safe from you... I can't make big talk."

New Year's at Luchow's is developed from the author's hilarious encounters involving his brother's with a telephone number a digit away from the famous New York landmark. He even allows that he and his sibling may be responsible for Luchow's closing. The audience was so convulsed with laughter during this reading that Prof. Rosenblatt had to pause significantly a number of times. Receiving many calls intended for the restaurant the two brothers, tiring of saying "wrong number," began to accept reservations. "I would ask — whenever someone called requesting a table for eight, for example — if the caller also wanted chairs." Then he "would do most of the talking in a Spanish-German accent so difficult to penetrate that requests for table — and chairs — often took ten minutes." The torture didn't end until one New Year's Day "when a sugar-voiced lady phoned in the morning to cancel a reservation for lunch" to be told that it would be impossible to run a restaurant "if everyone called up to cancel reservations."

The author claims that "it is required for writers to spend time in Vermont; it's part of the law; rusticate for one year, then when you're tired of talking to the animals, come were saying what sounded like "Is-mail."

Anyway, this went on for months. We would joke that Ishmael or Ishmail or Ismail went back to Afghanistan — or Iraq. And then, in the spring, on the cover of The New York Times Sunday magazine section, there was a story about the warlords of Afghanistan and a picture of a bearded warlord named Ismail.

Of course, it probably isn't — but, if it is, as a reporter, I wouldn't mind if he gave me a call. He knows the number — and won't have to go through a menu or the Taiwanese Embassy. • back to the city." His reading of Dogstoevsky sent us into fits of giggles. "The dog barks by Roger Rosenblatt who is trying to read Crime and Punishment by Fyodor Dostoevsky, but the dog barks." The dog drives him into insanity, "Dogs and Punishment by Rodya Rosenblatt, by Roger Raskolnikov, by Fyodog Dogstoevsky. Barkbarkbarkbarkbark... Is it the sound of the enemy I can never hear, the sound of evil itself, of my own murderous impulse to kill the very dog who barks to keep me from killing the very dog who barks to keep me from killing me?"

Prof. Rosenblatt separated humanity from other life forms in that "people are distinguished by narrative," their ability to relate sto-

The Artists

ing of this game really began in 1966 when this annual rivalry moved to the sandlot behind what is now Waldbaums. For some reason, beginning at that time, and for the next twenty-two years, the Writers won practically all of the games played. They ran up sixteen wins in seventeen games at one point. And there was much philosophical speculation why that was so. Are artists too laid back? Writers too aggressive? Who knew? Beginning around 1990 however, many new players, mostly West Coast film actors, agents and other types began showing up for the game — they now had houses here — and practically all of them announced themselves as “artists.” Somehow, this evened the scales. The current situation is Writers 24 wins, Artists 13 wins. The universe has come more into balance. Sort of.

Anyway, the trouble seemed to begin in the bottom of the seventh inning, when Richie Nash came up again to hit. New York Post sportswriter Mike Lupica had been pitching for the Writers — both he and Scheider were to pitch complete games — and Lupica was his usual semi-aggressive self. He’s played this game many times and he plays it hard, to win, and with every ounce of his being. I watched him in the third inning — keep in mind he was on the pitchers mound — chase a high foul ball off into foul territory between third and home, then off into the crowd and the T-shirt and souvenir tables beyond and I think he would have gone off into the parking lot chasing this impossible to catch ball if it had not finally come to the ground and, well, bounced. He turned and slowly walked back.

On the mound, however, he was all business. “You have to keep one foot on the rubber when you pitch,” I said when I saw his first pitch to Plimpton.

“I have my foot on the rubber when I release the ball,” he said. “It’s legal.”

I looked at his next pitch. He didn’t. Or so it seemed to me. What did I know? I needed an expert opinion. Who could I ask? I could ask him. He was probably the best baseball writer within ten miles as far as knowing how the rules went. I let it pass. But we had established our positions. He, the intimidator. Me, the one open to being intimidated.

Anyway, here we were in the bottom of the seventh and the heat was blazing down — I had been dousing my head with water between innings — and I wasn't even sure the batter I was looking at was Nash. It was.

Nash had come to the plate with a man on base. He tapped the end of his bat on home plate. And Lupica said something to me completely out of character.

"We better be real careful," he said. "He hits one our way he could knock our heads off."

I swallowed hard. I tried using Lupica, who is as small a man as I am, as a tree. I peered around him ready to call balls and strikes.

Ken Auletta came over from third. A few other players wandered in. I called time. They talked out of my earshot for awhile. Then Auletta said something loud enough for me to hear. "I'm going home," he said.

At first, I thought, he meant he was packing it in. But then I realized he meant that if Nash tagged one he'd go to home plate to assist writer Carl Bernstein in trying to get the runner. Hmmm.

Anyway, Lupica pitched. Way outside. Ball one. He pitched again. Way outside. Ball two. I had a suspicion he was going to intentionally walk Nash. Indeed, there was ball three, way inside. That's what he was going to do all right.

I think Lupica made a big tactical mistake at this point. I am not sure of this. It just seemed to me that having got three easy pitches past Nash and nobody really noticing he was deliberately trying to walk him, he thought he'd pitch one a little closer to the plate. Maybe a strike. Just before his final ball four.

Lupica pitched to the inside corner, a strike all right, and Nash leaned down and hit the most searing line drive I have ever seen. It whizzed away from his bat at a hundred miles an hour, gathering speed. It just cleared the outstretched glove of the shortstop, rose past Rick Weise in centerfield, over the snowfencing and it was still rising when it hit the chain link fence of the tennis courts beyond the field, leaving, I think, a permanent dent. Suddenly it was 6 to 5. And suddenly it was a ballgame.

And suddenly things got ugly. The Artists got two more runs in the bottom of the seventh to take the lead, 7 to 6. It happened on a two run homerun, hit by architect Joe Prisco, possibly the longest ball, or second longest ball I have ever seen hit at the Artists Writers Game. It went over the head of Rick Wiese back up against the wall in centerfield, and came down by the net in the center of the tennis court beyond the ball field. Now it was 8 to 7, in favor of the Artists.

The crowd got to its feet. In the top of the eighth, somebody hit a line drive over the third baseman for what should have been just a single. We had a third base umpire. He called it fair. After that, I thought I saw it bounce foul, hit something and bounce back into play. But the umpire at third said nothing. Alec Baldwin in left field grabbed the ball and threw it in, but two more runs had scored. Now it was 8 to 7 Writers. After the third out, there was a big melee on the field. I was curious about that play. As Baldwin trotted in, I asked him, had the ball hit something? He ran past me to his coach, also the organizer of the game Lief Hope, and said to him "Dan says it hit something. It hit a baby carriage. It was a ground rule double. The second run should not have scored." Artists started toward the mound, menacingly. I shouted back at them. "I just asked a question! The inning is over!" They retreated in confusion.

I was holding the ball. "Give me the ball," Lupica said. I handed it to him. He went to the mound and got ready to pitch. He was rushing the start of the inning. And he'd have done it too, officially starting the next inning and putting a permanent end to the melee. "Oh no you don't," I said. But the melee was over. And so he pitched.

There was the play where, at the end of a play and an Artist still at third with two outs, writer third baseman Brett Shevak tossed the ball to the pitcher, Mike Lupica and it had bounced away, and the runner ran home. Everyone was running around saying the run scored, or the run was illegal. The rule is that if the prior play had been an out the ball was dead and it was a flip back to the pitcher. If the prior play had been a hit, then the ball was still live and the run scored. I ruled it dead. But I had only a vague recollection that the prior at bat had been an out. Lupica cheered. But then a whole army of people, including the first and third base umpires, ruled it live and the run scored. I reversed myself. I thought Lupica would kill me.

After the inning, I went to the batting cage and asked boxing commentator Burt Sugar, who was narrating the game, what that prior lization in a town or city from this vantage point. But it was new to me.

Ultimately, we completed our meeting. It was shortened, of course. To just forty minutes. And then people rushed off, to their cars, not to cover any events surely, but to drive somewhere, anywhere, in the one thing remaining that worked, at least for awhile, their cars. What I thought, as my staff filed out, was that I will probably not see any of them ever again. They would be on the highways in their cars. They could avoid the carnage for awhile, but they could not hold it off forever. It made me even sadder.

You know the rest. People sleeping in offices and airports, relatives trapped in the upper floors of skyscrapers, people giving other people rides everywhere, people taking barbecue grills out onto the streets of Manhattan and grilling up everything they had in their refrigerators and giving it away. People charging $10 for a flashlight with working batteries. Shop clerks charging $5 for a bottle of water. There was one store I was told about — a drug store — where the manager stood behind the closed and locked vertical metal grate and, one at a time, took orders from prospective patrons standing peacefully in a line outside, then went off, got what they wanted, held it up behind the grating, took the money (correct change only) and then slid the purchase through the grating bars.

Here on the East End, lights blazed away again in the downtowns of two villages within hours — Southampton and Greenport — for very different reasons. In Southampton, the lights came on quickly because the Southampton Hospital has emergency power generators that were automatically clicked on, and they have an auxiliary LIPA power station on David's White's Lane near the Montauk Highway, which they unhooked from the national power grid to power up the immediate area. Greenport went down for only an hour because they have a totally independent power company, something gasoline fired — the only one like it on the East End — and they just unhooked themselves from the Northeast power grid and turned it all back on.

And then, more help was on the way. The underwater power cable that links Connecticut and Long Island, which has been shut down, actually been prevented from starting up by legal maneuvers in Connecticut, was now by court order started up because now it was a national "emergency." The order is good until September 15.

The first twenty-four hours of a region wide blackout is a party. The second twenty-four hours the party wears thin. The third twenty-four hours, the people get desperate. Toilets can't be flushed. People can't wash. Houses get sticky and stifling. There is nothing to do, and with the cars out of gas, nowhere to go. It gets ugly.

This one lasted only twelve hours. Early in the evening, many restaurants set up tables out on the sidewalk and served dinner by candlelight. Later at night, the discos boomed out music on battery powered radios. People drank. It was a very good time. And then at 4 a.m. here in the Hamptons, with everybody asleep and too numb to worry about the future, the lights came back on, and thousands of residential and commercial burglar alarms went off. The people moaned and scrunched pillows to their heads.

They say this blackout began when something accidentally broke at a power plant in Cleveland, Ohio, and people failed to take emergency measures to keep the problem from spreading. That's not what caused it at all. You now have read this true account of what took place in Bridgehampton. You decide. • ries. The reading of Kilroy was Here was interrupted by a dog barking in the distance. The author, undaunted and fast on his feet, quipped, "I've never been able to escape Dostoevsky," sending us into new howls of laughter.

The Giant Rat of Sumatra brought forward the author's desire and uncanny ability to incorporate favorite movie dialogue into his life through conversations. He waited for decades to have the chance to slip in "Haven't you heard of the giant rat of Sumatra?" as spoken by Dr. Watson in a 1940's Sherlock Holmes film. "If one heard an opening for a rat, there would still be the matter of its size. If the rat and the size were there, one still had to contend with Sumatra." Finally, on the "fiftieth anniversary of Mickey Mouse... one of the guys sat up with a quizzical look and asked, 'Has there ever been a bigger rodent?'"

Following the readings questions were entertained. A woman had read in Dan's Papers that Roger Rosenblatt sang, and would he sing for us? He declined, citing the absence of instrumental support.

But he did explain to us How to Live in the World, and he told of an illusive delusion from a Sports Illustrated cover in Ashley Montana Goes Ashore in the Caicos, absolutely bone dry emerging from the ocean.

Some of the work is like hearing the parade going by, running to throw open the window, only to find that it's the sonic boom sound system of the hip hop kid next door. The essays admonish, extort, refresh, and amuse in ways that can be unsettling, then hurtling one into hilarity to a world where Anything Can Happen.

Roger Rosenblatt's play based on his book, Rules for Aging, will be performed off Broadway following a reading last month at Long Island University Southampton College with Jane Pauley, who sang Nothing Rhymes with Ashcroft But my Heart. The author is University Professor of Writing there.

Roger Rosenblatt's credits include the Robert F. Kennedy Book Prize, a Peabody Award, an Emmy, and two Polk awards. He is a treasured local resource, as well as an internationally acclaimed talent with essays published in Time and featured on The News Hour with Jim Lehrer. He resides in Quogue.

batter had done. Line to third, he told me. The ball was indeed dead and the run, which counted, should not have. I apologized to Lupica.

"Forget it," he said. "Move on." He pitched.

The Artists scored two more runs in the bottom of the eighth to take the lead back 9 to 8. Boy did we have a ball game.

And then came the top of the ninth. Scheider, who was still pitching, got the first two players out fairly easily. The Writers, it looked like, were rolling over. And then, with two outs, there came up to the plate screenwriter Jeff Hilford. The Writers' last chance. Scheider pitched him to one and one, and then Hilford hit a solo homerun over the center field fence tying it up. The inning ended tied 9 to 9. We would go into extra innings.

Mike Lupica actually won this game for the Writers in the top of the tenth. He hit a single and stretched it into a double. Then he scored, sliding into home on a hit by Brett Shevak. The final score was Writers 11, Artists 9. It was over.

Most everybody who played repaired to The Laundry restaurant for a cold beer after the game. At the Laundry, Lief Hope saluted the Writers for their play, and he named two co-players of the game. Richie Nash for his two homeruns for the Artists. And Mike Lupica for his heads up play for the Writers. Lupica then offered a toast to Jeff Hilford, who he said deserved the award more than he. "With two out in the ninth, and us just about gone, he hit that home run to revive us," he said.

There was a further party at a private residence on Barnes Hole road in Amagansett for the players and their guests, with the public welcome.

Three charities benefited from the game, namely East Hampton Day Care, the Retreat and East Hampton Hospice. At last year's game, more than $9,000 was raised for the charities. This year, the total was $14,500. And there would be more to come raised at the Amagansett party.

And so the evening came to an end.

deals with an IQ-lowering virus that escapes and wreaks havoc on the intelligence of the national population, that in the future people would become dumber, not smarter. (IQ 83 is in the process of being made into a feature film by Steven Spielberg's Dreamworks.)

"People get stupider in the book, which reflects my opinion about American culture in general. It was what I thought could happen, and unfortunately I was right."

"We haven't got smarter since 1978," he told Mensa. "We are still in thrall to pop culture, which I find boring because it offers no challenges to the intellect."

I ask Arthur how he comes up with the ideas for his books.

"Sometimes I get ten ideas in one day." Do you get scared by them? "Of course I get scared. My books are scary. But they're also a good way for me to put my neuroses to good use."

One of Arthur's new novels, The Face of Things to Come, deals with fascism, a subject important to the writer whose grandparents were rich, conservative, non-religious Jews who moved to Europe but were forced to return to America by the threat of Nazi forces. "I suppose that's one of the reasons why I've always hated fascism," Arthur told Mensa. "It's a truly stupid ideology."

The Face of Things to Come is about how fascism would look if it occurred in America today. "It would be much more subtle than the German variety," said Arthur. "But I can see how it could occur here."

Arthur and Leslie are avid travelers, spending winters on the island of Tobago, where he wrote a collection of short stories called "Body Parts," a series that begins at the head and ends, well, you can guess where. There's even a story called "Spleen."

"Body Parts" is scary," said Arthur, "but it is also funny. It's black humor. Noir. A Japanese outfit is interested in making it into a TV series, they email me every day. Anyway, the stories are separate but I tried to tie them together. The first story is called 'Body Auction,' which is about a woman who sells her dead husband's body parts on eBay. She sells the eyes, the tongue. I was inspired by Gogol's 'The Nose.'"

I ask Arthur who he most admires. The answer is surprising. And not so.

"Linus Pauling. A piece on Pauling is the only one of my submitted stories that the Times refused to run. His views were too left-wing, they said. But Think (the IBM magazine) ran it. Through Think I also met Aldous Huxley (author of Brave New World), whom I liked a great deal."

The great intellects of Huxley and the Nobel Prize winning Pauling attracted Arthur, but even more impressive to him was their modesty, their lack of arrogance in the face of genius. They say we are attracted to people who possess the qualities we ourselves possess. Not surprisingly, Arthur is himself a modest man. Though quick with a humorous quip, he is passionate about the intellectual life and fiercely dedicated to his craft. Inspired by both art and science, he finds magic in the marriage of those worlds.

Arthur Herzog will be a guest of the "In Dialogue Series" at East Hampton's Ross School on Wednesday, August 27. The interview will take place in the Mildred Brown Senior Thesis Building in the Lecture Hall, 18 Goodfriend Drive, East Hampton. 631-907-5555

GEORGE'S UNBIASED HOW TO UNWIND TIP #1.

You moved out to the Hamptons to unwind.

To escape
the pressure;
the noise;
the pace;
the traffic.

Now, if you could only convince the kids to relax a little more and bring out the grandchildren more often...

Everything would be perfect.

You want them to relax?

Get a pool.

A Kazdin Pool, of course.

We've been designing, building and maintaining pools here for over 30 years.

That's a lot of pools.
And a lot
of awards.

And a lot

of happy, relaxed people.

We can't help you get the kids out here more often, but we sure can help make their stay more relaxing.

WITNESS THE MAGIC

My name is Stan Zeitchick, and I was born in Brooklyn, in 1935. I lived on Long Island for a good part of my life and then moved to Florida, ten years ago. It was in Florida that I became involved with Horses and the Handicapped, and it was then I witnessed the magic. You see, I have been honored and privileged to sit on the board of this wonderful organization that takes severely physically challenged children and puts them on top of a horse.
We do hippotherapy, a kind of physical therapy that involves the movement of the horse, a licensed physical therapist and a special indescribable something that produces results which are both documented and amazing.

We are at a crossroads now. Our small organization has been able to service seventy children; but, there are literally hundreds on the waiting list. Their physicians request that they do hippotherapy; but, alas, the cost of supporting the horses and barn has made it impossible for us to expand.

We are looking for that special someone, who is in a position to help us, help all those kids who need us so desperately. If you could leave a legacy of love, via a therapeutic riding facility, that would be established in your name, contact me at 631-287-1133. or 888-5 HELP-US (888-543-5787) and you too will be part of our "Magic."

Actor/activist Michael J. Fox, his wife Tracey Pollan, and their children really enjoyed the outrageous antics and fine dancing of Les Ballets Trockadero de Monte Carlo on Saturday night at WHBPAC. "The Trocks" performance was a sellout, as was Neil Sedaka's show the next evening.

* * *

Lee Davis's American Musical Theater Salutes Kander and Ebb was SRO at Guild Hall in East Hampton starring Broadway greats Karen Ziemba, Brent Barrett and Peter Howard. Actress Peg Murray, in the original Cabaret production, and playwright Terrence McNally, who wrote the book for K & E's The Rink, Kiss of the Spider Woman and the upcoming The Visit, came onstage to speak about working with Kander & Ebb. A slew of Broadway's elite were in attendance, including Gladys and Bob Nederlander. The next musical salute is a tribute to Adolph Green at Guild Hall Sept. 7. Phyllis Newman, Melissa Errico and George Dvorsky will perform.

that number of years or at least you not that number of years as we have traditionally treated it, numbers are meaningless." Co-chair of the event, Vogue magazine editor-at-large and author, Andre Leon Talley is a big advocate of FACT. "Dr. Oz takes a spiritual approach to medicine. Yoga is important, the well being of the mind as well as the well being of the physical body." Now after good health, I had to get the scoop on fall fashion from Andre the fashion Guru. "The one must have item for fall is GLOVES ladies! Wrist length, elbow length, opera length – you can wear gloves in any color, you can wear gloves with fur, you can wear gloves with tweed accents, it's just get yourself a pair of gloves. And, ya know what the key is? You don't even have to wear the glove, just stuff it inside on the edge of the pocket book the way your grandmother did when she went to church." Andre was filled with style tips, "For men I think the best thing for The Metrosexuals, is grooming. Metrosexual is a term used to describe the straight man that is interested in facials, manicures-pedicures...he uses personal hygiene products that you cannot find at the supermarket. Ladies you know what I'm talking about. Now, I agree with Andre, "The big tip, take care of your health, and I think that's why Dr. Oz is the wizard of Oz." For me, avoiding all white in my diet, I can try that, but wearing gloves in the fall, well that's going to be a bigger challenge.

Only one more weekend till Labor Day. I can't believe this summer is almost over.

Until next week...Life is short, you only live once. Party on!

Gina Glickman can be seen Tuesday's on News 12 Long Island's "What's Hot in the Hamptons."

Long Island Wine Classic Opens Hampton Classic
Bridgehampton, August 23

The kick-off to the Hampton Classic Horse Show, this inaugural event, sponsored by Wine Spectator magazine, will take place in two parts: an afternoon Grand Tasting with gourmet cuisine from some of Long Island and Manhattan's foremost restaurants, followed by a wine dinner and auction in the evening. Both events will celebrate Long Island's wine, produce, seafood and poultry in a beautiful setting under the VIP tents at the Hampton Classic.

The Grand Tasting will take place from 5 to 7 p.m. in the Grand Prix Tent overlooking the ring. This $150 ticketed event will offer guests the opportunity to taste selected wines from all of the Long Island Wine Council's twenty-eight member wineries, paired with delicious food at more than fifteen chef's stations.

The evening gala dinner and auction ($450 per person) will take place from 7 to 10 p.m. in the USET Tent, also overlooking the show's Grand Prix Ring. Diners will enjoy a superbly catered dinner by the Hampton Classic's acclaimed caterer Robbins Wolfe Eventeurs and music by an ensemble from the Long Island Philharmonic. World-class Long Island wines will be paired with each course.

Proceeds will benefit the three Eastern L.I. Hospitals: Southampton Hospital, Central Suffolk Hospital, and Eastern Long Island Hospital. For more information contact: Long Island Wine Council, 631-477-8493 or The Hampton Classic, 631-537-3177 or to purchase tickets call the Long Island Wine Classic line at (631) 537-3177.

Big Event Of The Week

"Redscapes" Opens at Bidwell Vineyards

Redscapes: seascapes, bodyscapes, landscapes, recent paintings by a family of artists, Andrew Castrucci, Alexandra Rojas, and Dolores Castrucci, all summer residents of Southold, opens Saturday, August 30 at Bidwell Vineyards on the North Road in Cutchogue with a reception from 3-6 p.m. The works reflect the color red in reference to wine, flesh, and sunsets.

Andrew Castrucci is a New York City-based conceptual artist. His work has been exhibited internationally and in many museums including MOMA and the Whitney. Alexandra Rojas, a recent graduate of the School of Visual Arts, is an abstract figure painter. Her work appeared this year in Bullet Space and Tribes Galleries in New York City. Dolores Castrucci is a painter of local North Fork scenes depicting vineyards, local beaches and many historic barns. Her work reflects a study of light and atmosphere in the tradition of the illuminist.

The show will run through September 30. Call 734-5200.

The finished product with bottles of bubbly 19. Sangiovese grapes at Pugliese Vineyards 20. Pat with daughter Lorelle Pugliese

The burgeoning Long Island wine industry celebrated its thirtieth birthday with a weekend-long bash at many North and South Fork wineries last Friday through Sunday. Macari Vineyards on Sound Avenue in Mattituck pulled out all the stops with "Wines Amidst the Vines," a fabulous food and wine pairing event featuring seven Macari wines served with such delicacies as Long Island Blue Point Oysters topped with osetra caviar and chili oil. And while we're on the topic of pulling out stops, down the road at Cutchogue's Pellegrini Vineyards, where the dessert wine called Finale was paired with succulent fois gras, owner Bob had an opportunity to show off another of his passions, an incredible computer-operated calliope. Further east at Pugliese Vineyards, owner Pat was busy hand painting her signature Champagne bottles of award winning Pugliese bubbly as visitors picnicked pondside on the vineyard's gorgeous grounds. So happy 30th Long Island Wine Country. May there be many more milestones to celebrate in equal style.

"Summertime, and the livin' is easy..."

Perhaps no one ever conjured up summer better than George Gershwin when he wrote the music, set to DuBose Heyward's lyrics, as part of the folk opera Porgy and Bess back in 1935. Hot days and balmy nights invite idleness as nothing else can. Even Caribbean jaunts mid-winter lack the power to elicit the true, sustained and delicious sloth of an East End August.

This year, though summer has come late to our part of the world, Silver Queen corn, rosy vine-ripened tomatoes, and juicy white peaches redolent of wine have finally appeared at our farmstands and on our tables. And preceded as they were by our eager and prolonged anticipation, the reward is, as the saying goes, so much the sweeter for the wait.

Bayview Inn & Restaurant. Culinary fireworks from a new sparkler facing Peconic Bay. The historic Bayview has undergone many identity changes since its inception as an 1860's boutique hotel. Owners Bob and Pat Patchell have restored its original spirit, with seven guestrooms and the North Fork's most exciting new dining room. Thomas Lopez creates separate specials menus, complementing his regular card of winners like spinach pasta with chunky lobster, Asian-style breast of duck, and marinated lamb chops in mint demi-glace. Scrumptious desserts and a kid's menu ensure everyone goes home (or upstairs) happy. South Jamesport Ave. and Front Street, South Jamesport. 722-2659. Entrees, $18-$26. (Trueman-Honey, 8/1/03).

Claudio's. In its 133rd year of continuous family ownership, Claudio's symbolizes the North Fork much as the Monauk Lighthouse represents the South Fork. The lovingly preserved bar was rescued from the bowery in 1885. You're truly drinking in history when enjoying a famed martini there. New chef Michael Ruggiero cleverly traces the restaurant's history. He's not only maintained Claudio's time-honored favorites, but his specials reflect founder Manuel Claudio's Portuguese and Mediterranean ancestry. And if you like your oysters raw, sea-fresh and plump, you'll do no better from here to Chesapeake Bay. 111 Main St., Greenport. 477-0627. Entrees, $17-$26. (Bradbrook, 7/25/03).

Cooperage Inn. With a beautiful new look emphasizing the cooperage theme, this charmer continues to carry the banner of North Fork cuisine. Chef/owner Jonathan Perkins, along with chefs Laimo and Hegeman, produce inspired appetizers such as rare sesame tuna carpaccio and pan-seared fresh mozzarella, and don't miss the sesame crusted calamari served over field greens with a soy vinaigrette. Steaks are steakhouse worthy, and the rigatoni ala vodka continues to dazzle. Fish here is always pristine and cooked with a light hand. Coming this summer: outdoor Tiki bar. Entrees $15.50-$30. 2218 Sound Ave. Baiting Hollow. 727-8994. (Simm, 1/10/03). [B]

Do Little's. Very welcoming and unpretentious. An excellent menu for diners interested in fresh, smartly prepared dishes that are not calorically trumped up. Thai mussels in ginger/lemongrass broth hit the mark. Excellent pasta dishes, headlined by justifiably famous Seafood Pasta in white wine sauce, filled with mussels, clams and shrimp over linguine with fresh tomatoes and spinach. Stuffed ravioli with sun-dried tomatoes and mozzarella is beautifully done. Sensibly priced wine list, with a knowing nod to local vintages. Entrees, $12.95-$19.95. Rt. 25, Mattituck Plaza, Mattituck. 298-4000. (Bradbrook, 7/28/01). [G]

Fauna. A hip and elegant culinary gem. Co-owner and consulting chef Mark Mittelman's menu astutely incorporates Asian influences into superbly conceived New American dishes. Tuna sashimi shines as an appetizer, as does duck confit atop sautéed spinach with walnuts and dried cranberries. Try and find room for the butternut squash pot stickers. The all-star cast of entrees includes Southeast Asian steak salad, pan-roasted bourbon chicken and a Napoleon of roasted vegetables. Desserts rotate daily. Extensive wine list with sixteen local vineyards. Entrees $20-$26. Route 25, Aquebogue. 722-5813. (Trueman-Honey, 6/7/02). [A,F]

Ile de Beaute. In a beautiful old house with courtyard tables, the spirit of Provence is alive in Greenport with highly authentic French cuisine. Its treatment of classics like escargots, French onion soup, and frogs' legs runs the gamut from superb to extraordinary. Rack of lamb, served with rosemary sauce reduction, is masterly. Desserts are tasty and the crepe options are best expressed in exponential notation. Service is deliberate but attentive. Entrees $24-35. 314 Main Street, Greenport. (Bradbrook, 7/12/02). [C,H,J]

La Cuvée Wine Bar & Bistro at the Greenporter Hotel. Gourmet bistro dining adjoining a hip boutique hotel footsteps from Greenport's vibrant downtown. The casually upscale dining room creates a pleasing environment for a light and adventurous menu. Seafood appetizers like tuna tartar and the sublime mussels in coconut and lemongrass broth bear an unmistakable Asian influence. But executive chef / owner Deborah Rivera's culinary artistry really announces itself when the entrees arrive. Long Island duck in an orange-infused coconut sauce is impressive enough, but topped by her otherworldly Chilean Sea Bass poached in a miso-sesame broth. Exceptional wine list, with by-the-glass offering many pleasant surprises. Entrees, $21-$26. 326 Front Street, Greenport. 477-0066. (Bradbrook, 4/25/03). [S]

La Plage. Exciting and imaginative haute cuisine just steps away from a Long Island Sound beach. Chef/owner Wayne Wadington's menu undergoes constant revision, reflecting his selection of premium ingredients or his latest inspiration for a sauce. His creations fly off the menu almost as quickly as off the plate, but if you have the chance, put in for the Yukon Gold potato soup with an oyster beignet, the roulade of local crab with succulent micro greens or the Griggstown Farm quail in smoked bacon. Superb wine list. Exceptional desserts. Entrees $22-33. 131 Creek Road, Wading River. 744-9200. (Bradbrook, 11/1/02). [R,V]

Modern Snack Bar. Home-cooked meals away from home await you at this charming family-run restaurant operating since 1950. Wittmeier brothers' time-honored menu contains dishes too good to go out of style. Delectable sauerbraten is perfectly tender and the stuffed cabbage very good. Duck breast salad, recently introduced, is another winner. Crab cakes and lobster salad are real treats, but the big surprise is the world-class shrimp and crabmeat quiche. Home-baked desserts are splendid and their take-out pie business is brisk. Wines are mostly limited to local vintages. Reservations not needed, but day or night, it's always a crowded house. Entrees, $9-$17. Rt. 25 Aquebogue. 722-3655. (Bradbrook, 10/4/02). [T]

Pepi's. Dazzling panoramic views of Peconic Bay and sumptuous Northern Italian cooking combine for a sensuous dining experience. Appetizers include a highly flavorful vegetable antipasto and a fresh tri-color salad of arugula, radicchio, and endive. Penne alla vodka, often predictable, is anything but here. The penne is served perfectly al dente and the sauce is both smooth and smoky. Also delicious is chicken Sorrentino, with eggplant, prosciutto and fresh mozzarella. Come dessert, do not miss the tiramisu, co-owner Nick Nikolov's specialty, an all-time keeper. Entrees $16-19. Port of Egypt Marine, Southold. 765-6373. (Bradbrook, 6/8/01). [K,O,Q]

Red Door. Red Alert! Stephan Mazzella, formerly of Lespinasse, has opened a fine new restaurant in Mattituck. His menu is quite versatile and his consistently tasty dishes excite the palate. Typically adventurous and successful is the pan-seared monkfish with a yellow tomato sauce and black olive purée topped with crispy fried leeks. Mazzella's treatment of fish epitomizes Greek and Italian-style preparation at its best. The appetizer of heirloom tomatoes with bocconcini mozzarella and fresh basil and balsamic vinegar is a tomato dish for the ages. Innovative desserts, too. Entrees - $16-$28. 13560 Main Rd., Mattituck. 298-4800. (Bradbrook, 6/14/02). [E,N]

Ross' Rotisserie and Smokehouse. A casual, homey eat-in or take-out spot opened by John Ross, former chef/owner of Ross' North Fork Restaurant. Great rotisserie and crispy fried chicken; marinated, honey-glazed duck legs; hickory-smoked spareribs; homemade soups and chowders; many cooked-from-scratch side dishes. Every Friday fish fry is an excellent value. A special 6-pound LI duck, cooked crisp, boned and quartered, accompanied by duck sauce and a garnish of apricots and cranberries ($19.99) is available by reservation the day before. Open 7 days 12-8. Route 48, Southold. 765-9655. (Simm, 10/5/01). [U]

The Seafood Barge. The North Fork restaurant for fish lovers. Owner/manager team of Dick Ehrlich and Betsey Flinn are as fanatical about results as Steinbrenner/Torre. Newly imported executive chef Michael Meehan updates the menu's standards and introduces several of his own specialties. Vichyssoise spiked with crab meat and basil oil was a rousing success. Marinated baby octopus with baby spinach was succulent and tender. As for the fish, the sushi appetizer continues to be stellar. The pan-seared striped bass with a red pepper broth is a revelation. Desserts are sensational. Excellent wine list, particularly local vintages. Entrees $24-$32. Port of Egypt Marina, Rt. 25, Southold. 765-3010. (Bradbrook, 7/26/02). [M,SF]

The Shady Lady Restaurant. The Zorn family's vision of stately elegance comes to the North Fork in this grandly unique dining room. Two rooms actually, with dinner jackets de rigueur in the Scarlet Room and a more casual ambience pervading the lodge-like Pine Room. The menu keeps apace with the opulence of the surroundings. Chef Ross Essner's cosmopolitan cooking style is globally savvy, but local-ingredient particular. Especially breathtaking is the lobster risotto with diver scallop and asparagus. A superb cheese plate complements the dessert choices and the wines are as excellently-chosen as they are reasonably-priced. 305 North Road, Greenport. 477-4500. Entrees, $28-$38. (Bradbrook, 7/18/03).

Sultan's Kitchen. At last, a good, authentic Eastern Mediterranean for the region. The emphasis is on Turkish cooking, one of the world's healthiest cuisines. The spacious dining room is non-descript, as this is a former pancake emporium; the subtleties are all in the flavoring of the food. Soups such as red lentil and tripe are spiced just right. The varied appetizers favor vegetarians while the main courses concentrate on lamb and chicken, often with delectable results. Turkish baklava and kadayif are exceptional finishing touches. Entrees $6.50-$15.95. 1077 Old Country Road, Riverhead. 369-9766. (Bradbrook, 8/9/02.)

Tuscan House. Your table is yours for the evening at this elegant, upscale Italian. Authentic, classical dishes bear the deft touch of chef William Oster. His fish is exceptionally fresh and his osso bucco masterly. But his virtuosity lies in the care with which he pairs his 16 pastas and his sublime sauces. The results range from delicate to intense. Pappardelle with a puree of beans dressed with soppresata, fresh chilies, garlic and parmigiano reggiano is typically adventurous and winning. The dessert tray is filled with excellent choices. Well-chosen wines, emphasis on regional Italians. 673 Osborn Ave., Riverhead. 727-2330. (Bradbrook, 9/7/01). [I]

Touch of Venice. Top-notch Italian cuisine in a delightful setting on Mattituck Inlet. Named appropriately for location, cuisine and a large mural dominating the dining room, this is family dining par excellence with a sophisticated ambience. Among the kitchen's highlights: Orient Point oysters, chilled but not icy; baby spinach salad with gorgonzola; black angus porterhouse. Manicotti in a fresh, simple tomato sauce is among the many pleasing pasta dishes. Lobster Meat over angel hair pasta, a frequent special, is an exciting dish of imaginative complexity and one of the North Fork's perennial favorites. Cold seafood bruschetta is another special to watch for. Entrees $16-$34. Wickham Avenue at Matt-A-Mar Marina, Mattituck.

298-5851. (Bradbrook, 8/16/02). [L]

Tweed's. One of the Island's most atmospheric dining rooms couples with an imaginative menu in the historic John L. Sullivan Hotel. Owner Ed Tuccio raises buffalo in Riverhead and his restaurant serves outsize portions of bison meat cooked to perfection in a merlot reduction so exquisite, it demands to be bottled. The quite versatile menu also features Chef Jeff Trujillo's first-rate crab cakes. Seared scallops in champagne sauce with grapes and onion marmalade brought terrifically creative accompaniments to the often pairing-resistant bivalves. Ambitious desserts boast great variety, with Strawberries Romanoff particularly winning. Entrees $19-26. 17 E. Main St., Riverhead. 208-3151. (Bradbrook, 8/30/02). [D, P].

Big Event of the Week

Jazz Singer Linda Ciofalo At Greenport's Soundview

Linda Ciofalo has performed at The Blue Note, Cleopatra's Needle, Iridium Jazz Club, and Old Westbury Gardens, among many other venues.

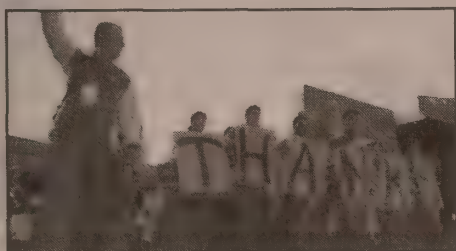

"She sings with a skip in her step and a raucous Mae West-style delivery on the Blues and turns tender on ballads. She has a wide vocal range and projects with gusto and sultry appeal," writes Frank Rubilion of Cadence Magazine.

Join Linda along with guitarist Mike Marino at The Soundview Inn in Greenport on Saturday, August 30, from 8 p.m. to midnight. Call 477-0666. —S.W. Simm

CLASSIC CARS WITH BOB GELBER

Early in my career, I worked at a couple of advertising agencies, writing and producing commercials for Hertz Rent-A-Car and what was then called AMC Jeep. Many hours were spent by some talented people making what we thought were state of the art messages to sell these automotive services and products.

What started me thinking about this is the fact that some of the best TV commercials are car commercials. Most of them are beautifully conceived, and, from a production point of view, look terrifically expensive, with, as they say in the industry, lots of production value.

Some of my favorites, even though I may not be particularly partial to the cars they advertise, are the following. I like the Buick spots with the ghost of Harley Earl, unusually hip for staid Buick. Another favorite are the Range Rover commercials, which make you want to drive a Rover in India or Africa, anywhere other than the Long Island Expressway. The Honda commercials in which you're shown all the products that they manufacture, from lawn mowers to outboard motors, are interesting. I like the singing Cadillac CTS commercials, which look like copies of the singing Mitsubishi commercials. Those Volkswagen commercials are so weird that it's hard to understand the message.

Porsche, BMW and Mercedes commercials all seem to stress the same idea: that they are the fastest, best built by little nimble elves in the Black Forest, the ultimate driving machines. It might be true, but Lexus, Infiniti, Acura, Jaguar and now advertising slogans from cars of the fifties.

The 1951 Hudson Hornet, their hot rod, was equipped with a "miracle H-power engine". The Hornet had a recessed floor that was their "step down" design. Hudson eventually went out of business, because from what I've heard, it was a "miracle" that they ran.

Your father's Oldsmobile, was, contrary to legend, quite an extraordinary machine. One of my first cars was a used 1950 Oldsmobile business coupe, with a V-8 and a three speed stick, "three on the tree". At the time it was very, very fast. In retrospect, it is considered to be one of the fastest cars of the fifties. Oldsmobile advertising promoted this performance, with all their engines called "Rocket V-8s". They also had "Jetaway Hydramatic" automatic transmissions. Your father and his Oldsmobile were a lot wilder than you thought.

The ads that the 1950s Willys-Overland Company ran for their two major products, the Willys station wagon and Jeepster were fun. For the record, the Willys wagon was the first all metal station wagon. It was heavily advertised that all their cars were powered by engines with "hurricane" power. The Willys Jeepster is quite a looker, with the visual Cadillac advertising tends to disagree.

There have been thousands of great ads for cars over the years, with some great advertising themes. Remember "There's a Ford in your future" and "See the USA in your Chevrolet". What about the unforgettable Rolls Royce ad that stated "At sixty miles per hour all one can hear is the sound of the clock". Let's talk about some lesser known but fascinating

EAST END KIDS

POLO SEASON ENDS

More kids are coming to the Bridgehampton Polo matches. In fact I had a play date there with Alex Berg the son of TV director Dan Berg, and we did the "swing the rope" game at the VIP section of the tent, to mixed reviews from the security guards. I then played with my new "big sister" and little soapster Paulina of All My Children. I ran into famous novelist Rona Jaffe, who described my column as "precocious". I looked it up in the dictionary and all I can say is "Yea!". The polo season ends this week, just when I was learning to say "Mariano Aguirre", I have already mastered "horse" and "Scotto pizza".

LIBRARY

I have been rah-rah for the libraries in the Hamptons. I think parents don't partake in the terrific programs for kids – and all I have been to are FREE! On Friday, mom took me to a class in the little room in the little kids section where the teachers and all of us sang songs and played games. It's like preschool without the price tag.

AQUARIUM

On the rainy Sunday, I made another discovery that is a kids delight. The Atlantis Marine World in Riverhead is a real fun place for children and adults seem to have quite the time as well. We saw little fish in beautiful colors, big scary fish like sharks, stingrays, and a sea lion show. And it's right near the Hamptons.

The Hamptons are a paradise for kids. We know we have the best beaches. I'm still working on my first sandcastle that will withstand one wave, but beyond the beach – there are kids programs at all the live theaters in the Hamptons. Guild Hall, Bay Street, and Westhampton Beach Performing Arts Center all have kids days or evenings. There are lots of other shows at high schools, churches and synagogues, and of course the libraries. Look for posters. Say "Hey mom – enough shopping, take me to a kids event". Tell her Emily told you but don't give her my phone number.

A big event for kids is coming. Even my grown up half sisters are bringing their kids out for this. It's Kids Day at the Hampton Classic Horse Show in Bridgehampton. August 30 – call 631 537-3177. See you there.

appeal of a giant '52 MGTD. Even though its speed capability is about the same as a light puff of wind, this "hurricane" powered four cylinder car is very collectible.

Pontiac was starting to "build excitement" in 1955 when their cars were first equipped with "Strato-Streak" V-8 engines. They also had "future fashioned style", whatever that means. A friend of mine used to drag race a 1957 Pontiac with what was called factory "tri-power". It was a stock hot-rod Pontiac with three carburetors. As is the norm for most factory hot rods in those days, the car was literally too fast for its chassis or brakes. Today, no factory would dare build such a car

In 1957 Buick built "The Big Thrills Buick" with three models, the Roadmaster, Special and Century. The Special was the least expensive, the Roadmaster the highest priced. Amazingly, the Buick Century was equipped with the expensive and powerful Roadmaster engine, but was less expensive. It was one of the quickest accelerating cars of 1957.

The fifties were really the golden era of automobile advertising. It was a simpler time in all ways. As impressive as automobiles and their ads are today, it is sometimes refreshing to see a Bolero Red and Raven Black DeSoto convertible drive by, with its fluid drive in high gear, its tail fins saluting an era that is missed by many. Tall tail fins are nostalgic on dry land, but in the ocean, watch out.

HOME FOR THE SUMMER... By David Lion Rattiner

BROTHER WAR

It starts out as just a little game. I will be sitting on the couch with my younger brother Gabriel watching Seinfeld. The show will be going on and we will be laughing here and there at the different jokes. Suddenly I will get an urge in my body. I will see Gabe. He is sitting no more than three feet from where I am. All I have to do is take one little leap and I could easily attack him, starting a brother war.

Nobody really knows why brothers do this, but they do. All brothers, it doesn't matter what the age difference is, have the urge to attack one another at various moments throughout their lives. I think my brother and I started off with the brother war around eight years old. I was sitting on the couch, watching Sesame Street with my brother when suddenly I would feel an urge in my body. I would see Gabe. He would be sitting no more than three feet from where I was. All I needed to do was to take one little leap and easily attack him, starting a brother war.

Our most recent brother war was three days ago. We were watching Seinfeld. Gabe had no idea what I was planning. He was just sitting there, so innocent, so vulnerable. I decided to make my attack.

First I fired a warning shot at him. A pillow shot. I casually, without looking directly at him and using my peripheral vision, grabbed a pillow from the couch and set up the whole throw. I was military genius. He had no idea what I was doing. I looked like I was watching Seinfeld, but of course, I wasn't. I gripped the pillow tightly in between my fingers and heaved it at Gabriel, aiming for his head. It connected with outstanding accuracy, which these days is pretty normal. I am looking at twenty, almost twenty-one years of experience at throwing pillows at my brother. SMACK.

"Dude!"

I smile.

"What the hell man?"

He laughs a small, fairly fearful laugh, for he knows what the pillow warning shot is.

Two minutes go by and I plan my pounce. Kramer runs into Jerry's apartment like a lunatic the way he always does, somehow I relate to him. Gabe is still very much so in the corner of my eye. I look at the clock, nearly three minutes has gone by, it is time to make my strike.

I decided that because he is only three feet away from me, and because I have incredible jumping capabilities, that I would leap from the position that I was sitting in onto him, sacrificing my entire body just so I could punish him in some way. From there, I would play it by ear. This all sounded like a good plan to me. I glanced at Gabe. He saw my glance. I looked back at the TV as did he.

Using every ounce of energy, all one hundred and eighty pounds of me, I leaped onto Gabriel like a panther onto a zebra. Or is it a cheetah onto a zebra? Either way, I leaped onto him. Somehow, I don't know how, he was prepared.

While I was in mid-air, Gabe threw up his legs from the couch and dropped to his back. He was going to kick me away. I thought about all this, however, during the half a second I was in mid-air and decided that I would grab onto his shirt so that when he extended his legs, I would not fall off of the couch. The plan worked.

Gabe extended his legs while at the same time, I grabbed his shirt. His feet dug into my stomach hard but I did not care, for he had not succeeded in what he had planned to do and I had succeeded. War had begun.

I started throwing relentless punches at his legs, you might know this punch, it is commonly known as a Charlie horse. Gabe winced at them but did not surrender. He reached for my arms, trying to control them. We were fighting each other's arms, and I was wasting my energy. The dogs started to bark, I started to sweat, Gabe started to punch.

Somehow, Gabe managed to wrap his legs around me and hold me in a position on the couch so that my side was in punching distance away from him. I could feel my kidney being exposed and prepared for the hit. All of the health classes in high school came back to me about kidneys. Somehow they helped you pee and you cannot live without them. I braced myself for the strike.

It only took one punch, Gabe put everything he had into it, the punch resonated throughout my body, I have never taken a hit like this from my younger brother before. I let out a grunt. My Dad came running down the stairs. "What the hell is wrong with you two?"

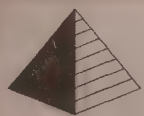

I was mad, I wanted to make a mess. I could barely breath. I turned for Gabe and pushed on him, the dogs were barking, I pushed him off of the couch. He grabbed onto my shirt while he was falling, and we both came tumbling down to the floor, my foot hit the coffee table. Time magazine with the cover of Arnold Schwarzenegger and the headline "Ahhhnold" went flying into the air, The New York Times dropped to the floor, and Dan's Papers landed on my back.

"Okay, okay, okay."

"I win."

"No you don't"

"Yes I do."

ART SMITH'S BACK TO THE TABLE - A COOKBOOK

Art Smith's cookbook, Back to the Table, The Reunion of Food and Family, Hyperion, is as appropriate today as it was when first published in 2001. Mr. Smith stays close to his message in formatting this book where he reinforces the ritual of the shared meal with chapters such as Bless the Table, Breaking Bread, The Family Meal, Food as Love and Friends as Family. A message that I heartily endorse and encourage in my classes and writing.

Art Smith grew up in rural northern Florida in a farming family where his mother and grandmother — who also ran a B&B in an old Brick Victorian — set their family tables with "nourishment and love." There were "endless bowls of homemade 'put up' — relishes, jellies, chutneys and jams; farm-raised meats, fresh vegetables and all manner of baked goods and sweets." Today Mr. Smith prepares many of his grandmother's recipes as a way to recapture her spirit.

Missing the simplicity of Jasper, Florida when he moved to Chicago Art felt a new sense of security working as a private chef when the family regularly came together for meals. To be sure he witnessed various situations but when laughter erupted in the dining room he knew he was home free. In the end he thought, "It was the good meal that restored sweetness to life." In the mid-90's Mr. Smith spent 3 affectionate summers in East Hampton with a family preparing his grandmother's homemade strawberry jam with local strawberries and all manner of family favorites with fresh herbs planted in his host's garden just for him.

Sprinkled throughout the book are timely and inviting recipes that include, Grilled Zucchini with Balsamic and Mint, Crab Cakes with Spicy Remoulade Sauce, Flank Steak with Lime Marinade, and Grilled Shrimp with Arugula and Lemon Vinaigrette. In addition there is a rich assortment of distinctive dishes such as his grandmother's Buttermilk Fried Chicken, Tomato and Cheddar Cornbread, Focaccia with Roasted Tomatoes and Onion, and Seafood Gumbo. Growing up in Pecan country, desserts such as Chocolate Pecan Pie, Pecan Divinity and Pear, Ginger and Pecan Loaf are just some of the tempting sweets, illustrated throughout with stunning photographs in Back to the Table.

Art Smith has been Oprah Winfrey's personal chef for seven years. In that context he, like she, has comforted scores of families and friends educating them to a familiar place. For Mr. Smith it is a place to share and connect through food to celebrate life's blessings.

GRILLED ZUCCHINI WITH BALSAMIC VINEGAR AND MINT

Art Smith has a particular penchant for the well-reviewed Premium Select Extra-Virgin Olive oil, Lucini, used here to delicious advantage.

Makes 4-6 servings

1/4 cup extra-virgin olive oil
3 garlic cloves, finely chopped
4 medium zucchini, scrubbed and cut in half lengthwise
Salt and freshly ground pepper
2 tablespoons balsamic vinegar
1/3 cup coarsely chopped mint

1. Heat the oil and garlic in a small saucepan over low heat, just until the garlic is very aromatic, about 2 minutes. Remove from heat.

2. Build a charcoal fire and let burn until coals are covered with white ashes. Or preheat a gas grill to high.

3. Brush the zucchini with some of the garlic oil and season to taste with salt and pepper. Grill the zucchini, skin side down, until it begins to soften, about 3 minutes. Turn and cook until tender, about 3-6 minutes more, depending on the size of the zucchini.

4. Cut each zucchini half at a sharp angle into 2 or 3 pieces and place in a bowl. Add the vinegar, mint, and the remaining garlic oil. Toss well. Season with additional salt and pepper to taste. Serve warm or cool to room temperature.

PEACH BUCKLE

This timely summer peach recipe is capped with a sweet cake layer rather than the usual crisp topping.
Makes 6-8 servings

2 pounds ripe peaches, peeled, pitted and sliced (5 cups)
1/2 cup (packed) light brown sugar
1/4 teaspoon ground cinnamon

1/4-cup all purpose flour
2 table spoons unsalted butter, cut up

For the topping

1 cup all-purpose flour
1/2 teaspoon baking powder
1/2 teaspoon baking soda
1/8 teaspoon salt
6 tablespoons unsalted butter, at room temperature
1/2 cup granulated sugar
1 large egg at room temperature
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
1/2 teaspoon almond extract
1/2 cup buttermilk

Position rack in center of oven and preheat to 350 degrees. Lightly butter an 11 X 8 1/2-inch glass or ceramic baking dish

1. Toss peaches, brown sugar, cinnamon, flour and butter. Transfer to the baking dish.

2. Whisk the flour, baking powder, baking soda, and salt in a medium bowl to combine. Beat the butter and sugar in a medium bowl with a hand-held electric mixer on high speed until light in color and texture, about 3 minutes. Beat in the egg, vanilla, and almond extract. On low speed, add the flour in three additions alternating with two additions of the buttermilk, beginning and ending with the flour, and mix until smooth, scraping down the sides of the bowl often with a rubber spatula. Spread the batter over the peaches.

3. Bake until a toothpick inserted in the center of the topping comes out clean, about 45 minutes. Cool slightly. Serve warm or cooled to room temperature.

Dining In The Hamptons

Riccardo's is well worth visiting just for the view, the setting, the total ambience. Come here uptight and stressed and the combination of the surroundings and the soft South American background music is guaranteed to relax you almost instantly or at least by the time that your attentive server brings you delicious home made corn bread and a glass of your favorite tippie!

We were not at all stressed but took full advantage of the surroundings and the cornbread and Chilean Sauvignon Blanc and Italian Pinot Grigio that Steve our very proficient server promptly delivered as we looked through a menu mainly based on dishes which have become firm favorites with diners here but also with a few new ones.

Riccardo ensures that everything bears his distinctive style so wonderfully fresh oysters and clams came with a dipping sauce where flavors of horse radish and cilantro blend to give a rare intensity. Similarly the mussels were plump and the broth passed our dunking test with flying colors. Ceviche has always been a favorite here and Riccardo takes local striped bass and marinades them in a citrus blend that results in fish that takes on the clean tangy taste of the marinade while still retaining that sushi like quality of absolute freshness.

The gazpacho chilled soup was absolutely perfect on one of the unfortunately oh so rare perfect summer evenings of this strange year. The sun was setting slowly over Three Mile Harbor and with the boats slowly rocking at their moorings and the beautiful gardens running down to the water's edge the moods of tranquility increased. The gazpacho had that perfect bite which gradually creeps up on you as you sip it.

Then we tasted a dish we had not eaten here previously. Tuna carpaccio was a beautifully presented plate of sashimi grade fresh tuna that had been thinly cut then placed between paper and beaten out very thinly to cover the plate. The accompanying mix of fresh delicate greens perfectly complemented this dish.

Riccardo's Seafood House

313 Three Mile Harbor, East Hampton

Another new dish, (to us anyway), is a speciality of soft shelled crabs sautéed with leeks, tomatoes and capers are served over mashed potatoes, a very imaginative and different way of presenting these delicacies. Lobster trinitte came full of lobster and was not overshadowed by the saffron and basil based sauce or the perfectly cooked noodles. One side dish, which really has to be tasted, is the humitas, which is grated fresh corn with a touch of onion and perhaps some basil, cooked and served in the corn husk.

Even though we were not able to taste them on this visit, those of you who are regular visitors here can rest assured that Riccardo still serves his wonderful baked squash with rock shrimp and catupiry cheese and that classic Chilean dish, curanto, full of poached mixed fish, shrimp and scallops.

Desserts are appropriately interesting and we chose a piece of an apple raisin drunk cake which with a great cup of espresso brought another memorable visit to this charming restaurant to a close.

Appetizers range from $6 to $12; main courses from $18 to $35 and desserts $6 to $7. Apart from the main menu, there is a prix fixe and also a $24 lobster special on Sunday to Thursdays.

Riccardo's continues to offer great food at realistic prices and to bring that special touch of South America to the Hamptons. Now in its fourth season, it is a wonderful restaurant for occasions, from a family celebration to a romantic evening watching the beauty of the sunset with your dinner companion!

Dining In The Hamptons

Don't forget about the first annual Long Island Wine Classic taking place at the Hampton Classic grounds in Bridgehampton on Saturday, August 23rd. This kick off party for the horse show, which runs from August 24th to the 31st, is sponsored by the Wine Spectator. All proceeds will go to benefit the three Eastern Long Island Hospitals. East End chefs such as Jason Weiner of Almond, James Carpenter of Della Femina, Omar Bueso of H2O Seafood Grill, Craig Jermin of Tellers and Todd Jacobs of Tierra Mar will be in attendance, serving up some delicious samples for all hungry ticket holders. Cost is $400 for dinner and grand tasting package and $150 for the grand tasting only. This first time event will focus on the special relationship between Long Island food and Long Island wines so don't miss out. For further information or for tickets, visit www.liwineclassic.com or call 537-3177.

Congratulations are again in order for Nick & Toni's who are celebrating their 15th anniversary this Sunday. This invite only party will raise money for the East Hampton Community Council, The Children's Aid Society and the Incontinentia Pigmenti International Foundation. Many famous Nick & Toni regulars and alums are sure to attend, so keep an eye on this space for all the celebrity sightings.

Babette's in East Hampton has announced they will be offering for purchase, tickets to the upcoming Friends of Hillary Clinton Benefit and Reception. Senator Clinton will be in attendance. The fundraiser is scheduled to take place this Sunday between 5 p.m. and 7 p.m. at the Bridgehampton home of Ellen Chesler and Matt Mallow. Tickets for the benefit are $250 per person. For more information contact Babara Layton at Babette's - 329-5377.

Zagat 2003 says The 1770 House Restaurant & Inn is "The best restaurant on Long Island." This East Hampton eatery also received a rating of 25 for food, 24 for décor, and 23 for service. Chef Kevin Penner is the culinary mastermind. Open every night at 6p.m. Call 324-1770 for details.

Serving one of two prix fixe dinners four nights a week, Café Max in East Hampton has dinner deals that won't empty your wallet. Sunday and Thursday enjoy a two course meal for $20, or try the $22.50 three course special on Mondays and Wednesdays. Sushi is available Fridays and Saturdays. Also, when dining at Café Max you won't want to forget the wine. Café Max is a Wine Spectator award winner, and has been every year since 1995. Call 324-2004 for more info.

Celebrating their 20th season in business Mirko's Restaurant is still serving delicious meals Tuesday through Sunday. This eatery located in the Water Mill Square has outdoor dining available. With quotes from Zagat 2003 like "Mirko's #1 in the Hamptons" it's not surprising that Mirko's is still going strong after twenty years. Call 726-4444.

If you're planning a party to wrap up this summer and you want it done right, you'll probably be looking for a good catering company. The Hampton Clam Bake and Catering Company located in East Hampton can plan a great clam and/or lobster bake for you and your friends - on the beach, or right in your own back yard. Call 324-8620 or log on to www.hamptonclam-bake.com. If you're in the mood for something a little more chic to wrap up the season, then try Mazzu's Catering in Water Mill. Mazzu's will do everything from elegant dinner parties to romantic beach picnics for two. They also serve fresh homemade pastas. Call 324-2004 for details.

In case you didn't already know Q a Thai Bistro on Noyac Road in Southampton is open for dinner at 5 p.m. seven days a week. Serving a bento box special (for two) Sunday through Thursday 5 to 7 p.m. for $28.95, Q also offers an outdoor patio for your dining pleasure, as well as a posh lounge for when you want to enjoy a cocktail. TOM VALENTI'S HAMPTON RECIPE OF THE WEEK

Serves 4

- | | |
|--|--------------------------------------|
| 1 lb penne or fusilli, precooked to al dente | 1 lb cold, cubed chicken breast |
| 2 cups tightly packed fresh basil leaves | (grilled or poached), optional |
| 1/2 cup macadamia nuts, | 1 cup seasonal mixed vegetables, |
| toasted and cooled | cooked to al dente (asparagus, |
| 1/4 cup grated Parmesan cheese | green beans, white beans or broccoli |
| 1 large clove garlic, cut into thick slices | work well), optional |
| 1/2 cup MacNut™ Oil | Coarse salt |
| | Freshly ground black pepper |

This can be served hot as a side dish with dinner or cold as a lunch entrée. Toss the pasta into salted boiling water for about 6 minutes, drain and refresh in an ice bath and drain again. Do the same for the seasonal vegetables if so desired.

Place the basil, macadamia nuts, parmesan, garlic and MacNut™ Oil into a blender and puree until a thick paste is formed. If necessary, scrap down the sides and blend again to ensure a consistent texture. Season with salt and pepper and blend a final time. In a large stainless steel bowl, mix the pesto, pasta, vegetables and chicken together and thoroughly combine. Either serve immediately or chill.

TOM VALENTI IS CHEF & OWNER OF OUEST, NYC.

MACNUT™ OIL IS AVAILABLE AT SECOND NATURE MARKETS (EAST HAMPTON AND SOUTHAMPTON), BAREFOOT CONTESSA (EAST HAMPTON), WESTHAMPTON NATURAL FOODS, CITARELLA (ALL LOCATIONS), GRACE'S MARKETPLACE, HEALTH NUTS, GOURMET GARAGE AND ZABAR'S (NYC).

Confessions of a RESTAURATEUR

By Fred Lieberman

After the LIPA blackout was fixed just in the nick of time, (the eighth or ninth caused by LIPA, since 1998) we were able to salvage business on that busy August Saturday night. However, each succeeding problem that had to do with our power at the restaurant, was taking its toll on myself and my family. I was beginning to grow weary of this business as our problems with LIPA became the symbol of my growing discontent. The more disenchanted I became the more my family became an issue to me. Was it all worth it? The story resumes below on a Saturday night, almost a year ago to the day, August 17, 2002.

After venting my LIPA blackout frustrations towards Galo, I went into my apartment in the barn in back of the Farmhouse this August 17, 2002, and sat on my bed in the dark. The lights were still out. My thoughts again drifted to my kids and I remember telling myself that if my night in the restaurant could be salvaged I was going to take off - just take off! - and pay a surprise visit to my kids in camp in Maine. Color War! After several more minutes of darkness, the knot growing with each passing second, the lights went back on. 33 minutes in total but not before a LIPA truck showed up after a frantic call from the restaurant. I was so happy. The night went smoothly after that. At ten pm I tested myself. Was I really going to take off for Maine or was this just another personal bull bleep story in my weekly promise to spend less time at the restaurant. After all, I could reason, this is August, the busiest month of the year. Too bad camp doesn't happen in October. But it was different this time. I felt different. I missed my children. Me the workaholic. Thanks to LIPA work suddenly seemed less important. Was I really going to put my money where my mouth was and really do what I promised? YES!! Yes I was.

Off I went. I couldn't believe what I was doing. It was August in East Hampton. So what. It was 10:20 pm when I left my apartment in the rear of the Farmhouse, a small bag full of clothes in my hand. I blocked the restaurant out of my thoughts. I was ahead of the game. I thought about nothing. I plugged in my cel phone. I was very excited. Off

I went to the ferry at Orient Point and beyond that to Maine and my kids.

Of course I missed the last ferry and cursed myself for not calling. What to do? Sleep in the parking lot til morning or drive to the Whitestone Bridge? I stayed. Put my seat back. Turned on my radio and lit up a cigar. I was loose. I had dodged a bullet and was counting my blessings. I thought lovingly of Susan, Andrew and Matthew. (Susan was away at graduate school.) I was doing something my wife had urged me (begged me) to do for two years and I had LIPA to thank. Imagine that. I hated that company but thank you very much.

I took a leisurely drive on Sunday starting in Connecticut after the ferry landed. Bought a lacrosse stick for Andrew and some comic books for Matthew. I called Shep at about noon. Shep is the Camp Director. I was aware that the camp rules were pretty specific; "Parents are allowed in Camp for visiting day only and will not be allowed for Color War." I knew I was breaking the rules but I knew I wasn't going to let Shep stop me. To his credit, he was very gracious with his enthusiastic invitation. "See you for breakfast at the family table." He sensed my anxiety. Good job Shep. My kids will be back next year. Happy as I was in anticipation of seeing the boys, I couldn't get LIPA out of my mind.

After five years in business it was bugging me that this company, LIPA, who was supposed to be a provider, was certainly not providing very well. They were affecting my business. At the very least this latest blackout caused damage to my computers in the restaurant as well as my phone system. The "A" in LIPA stands for "Authority". With no competition they certainly are the authority. They have made me paranoid. I was always waiting for the other shoe to drop. In my case waiting for the lights to go out again. Next time for maybe a week. This was beginning to make me really uncomfortable. The more I drove towards Maine and thought about this situation the more I realized that I was serious about the way I felt. LIPA, in one sense, was in control of my business; control of my life. If the lights could go out on Saturday, why not Friday, and Sunday, and everyday. If they could go out for 23 minutes, why not 23 hours, or 72 hours. After all, it happened in New York during that blackout in 1977.

I thought about the fact that we on the East End have the highest kilowatt electrical rates in the country. At these exorbitant rates a cat who likes cabbage (see last week) shouldn't cause the lights to go out in my house in Amagansett. You would think we all should, at these rates, have a better expectation that on our busiest nights of the summer at the restaurant, our lights and cooking fans will stay on. I was seriously thinking that perhaps I should not have to think about that anymore; that if I didn't have to deal with LIPA (or the allegory of LIPA) that color war at camp could be followed by baseball camp, followed by the Grand Canyon, followed by France, followed by a zillion other things that I can do with my family that would include LIPA NOT intruding in my life. It was all sounding good. The trip to Maine seemed like a ride to Brent's. (To be Continued...)

ART COMMENTARY

With Marion Wolberg Weiss

MOVIES ON MY MIND: RICHARD PRINCE AT GLENN HOROWITZ BOOKSELLER

The juxtaposition of language and image has long been a fascinating exploration for linguists and artists alike. Springs resident and semiologist/painter Ellen Frank is a good example. While Richard Prince in previous incarnations has concentrated more on text/graphic design, his current display at East Hampton's Glenn Horowitz Bookseller represents a nice balance: between written words and appropriated images.

Certainly there's nothing new in this kind of endeavor, but this critic sees some interesting underlying themes which bear examination, nonetheless. (Not to mention the show's primary subject matter—cinema/pop culture.)

Thus, celebrity photographs, publicity stills, photographed jokes, and original manuscripts challenge the veracity of what we see and society's willingness to accept what may be false. All in the name of voyeurism with a decided sexual bent. The bottom line? We don't care if the images are "true" or not; we just like to look.

The key to such a recurring theme lies with Prince's collage presenting a book cover from The Stepford Wives. Those familiar with the novel or film know that the women are really clones and not authentic human beings. Yet everyone is fooled, thinking they are real.

Another work depicts a photographic essay from the world of pornographic movies: director Russ Myer's picture gallery complete with a big breasted female and a blurred Traci Lords engaged in a vague sex act. The point is, are the breasts real and is it really Traci Lords, an exploited child porn star who has resurfaced recently as a talk show host (or something like that)?

Speaking of pornography, there another photo montage which includes Ruth Klugman sitting on Jackson Pollock's lap; Prince labels Ruth as a "lover," evoking a slightly sexual connotation. Yet the couple is faceless, photographed from the neck down. Are they really who Prince says they are?

By the same token, can we believe it's an image of Madonna (herself often shown in sexy poses) which Sean Penn writes about? I thought I would get away with it (the marriage) quietly? After all, the faceless figure is only defined by a black dress and arm in profile.

Prince's own display for his book, Good Life, continues this suggested sexual voyeurism with his words: "The first time he saw her, he saw her in a photograph."

Best of all, we like Prince's textual mantra: "Why I Go to the Movies Alone..." Taxi

Driver's Travis Bickle could have used the same words to rationalize his obsession for pornographic films and voyeurism.

Then again, Bickle was also a mass murderer. Or a Christ figure, depending on how you look at it.

The exhibition (artwork and book) by Richard Prince will be on view until September 17.

HONORING THE ARTIST: MICHELE MOTT

Sag Harbor artist Michele Mott is a fortunate individual. She has always known that pursuing art was her life's calling, and she has never wavered from that commitment. Ms. Mott says she owes it to both growing up on the East End and her mother's encouragement.

"I always knew I wanted to be an artist," Ms. Mott notes with resolve. "I've loved art since I was five. Maybe it was because of the influence of the artists' community here; I remember once meeting de Kooning, and that memory stayed with me. If I had to grow up some place, fate brought me here. My mother encouraged me, too. She took my passion seriously. It's ironic, however, that I live by the sea and I don't paint seascapes."

What Ms. Mott does paint are landscapes, her passion for barns and farmland just as intense as her love for art. (This week's cover, "Summer Spendor," is an example.) According to the artist, this attraction is a long-standing one: "I've always liked barns that are old and have a rustic feel. Often they are seen in the distance, becoming like friends or little characters."

Another irony is at play as well. Ms. Mott started painting barns when she lived in Massachusetts, not East Hampton, and landscapes were not the only subject matter she created. "I started doing portraits when I attended Southampton College, although I remember painting a picture of my mother when I was thirteen," she explains. "Transferring to Southampton College from an institution in North Carolina was the best thing I did."

No matter what the subject matter, Ms. Mott employs a variety of techniques: "I use mainly oil paint on wood. This way it's possible to remove something with an electric sander," she says laughing a bit. "My husband was really surprised when I used the sander for the first time. I also paint with watercolors and pencil, especially when I do commissions."

Regarding style, however, Ms. Mott sticks to primarily one approach, realism, although she respects a variety of styles: "I love realism, looking beneath the surface; I'm very detailed. But I also admire Impressionism. It's not what I do, but maybe I'll get less tight in the future. I admire Van Gogh and Rembrandt, too."

Continuing with the idea that her own style might change, Ms. Mott notes with intensity that "I used to be really organized in my personal life; now I'm getting less so. Perhaps my painting will get less restrictive. Who knows? Maybe one day I'll just paint noses. An artist should be free. Whatever I do, I know I'll follow my heart."

—Marion Wolberg Weiss

Ms. Mott's work can be seen at the Chrysalis Gallery in Southampton.

ENTERTAINMENT IN THE HAMPTONS

The Exonerated At Guild Hall

Mia Farrow, Billy Dee Williams, and Montel Williams will appear in the critically acclaimed Off-Broadway hit The Exonerated. Directed by Bob Balaban, the documentary play makes its Long Island premiere and will run through August 24, at the John Drew Theatre at Guild Hall in East Hampton.

The play follows the experiences of six former prisoners that spent between 2 to 22 years on death row, and later found innocent and exonerated. Written by Jessica Blank and Erik Jensen, the play is inspired by interviews with 40 people that were conducted by the playwrights during the summer of 2000. Although a young play, it has already been the recipient of the Drama Desk Award for Unique Theatrical Experience, the Outer Critics Circle Award for Outstanding Off-Broadway Play, and the Lucille Lortel Award for Unique Theatrical Experience.

Dan's Papers took a few moments to speak with Mia Farrow and Montel Williams to get their perspectives on the play and its subject matter before they arrived in the Hamptons for the performances.

Dan's Papers: What's your stance on the death penalty?

Mia Farrow: I'm opposed to it. I oppose it in all arenas on moral grounds and because the justice system is flawed and innocent people are being executed and lives are being ruined. There are six people in this play, more than forty were interviewed and they rep-

Q&A: Garland Jeffreys

From Brooklyn to The Springs, Italy and around Europe, Garland Jeffreys has been playing and making music for nearly forty years. He's played with some of the greatest musicians of the day and he keeps coming back for more.

Dan's Papers took a few minutes to talk to Jeffreys, see what he was up to and get the word on what the crowd can expect when he plays Bay Street Theatre next Monday, August 25 at 8 p.m.

Dan's Papers: You can live pretty much wherever you want as a musician, so why the Hamptons?

Garland Jeffreys: Well, technically I'm a New Yorker. I was born and raised in Brooklyn, at the age of thirteen I managed to escape across the Brooklyn Bridge and into the jazz and blues clubs of the East Village and saw musicians like Coltrane, B.B. King and Charlie Mingus and all the other greats from those days. I first came out to the Hamptons in the '60s and nowadays I come out here for the summer and rent a place up in the Springs. Springs suits me. I like the atmosphere, there's no traffic, it's great.

DP: You've done a lot of travelling; any favorite places?

GJ: Italy is one of my favorite places, all of Europe is great, but I really love Italy. When I was nineteen and in school at Syracuse I had the opportunity to go to Italy and I lived with an Italian family, learned to speak Italian and had an amazing time in the ancient cities with the art everywhere.

DP: Where do you get your material?

GJ: New York. I come from a mixed background, and I never really felt comfortable in any one group when I was younger, and I came from a mixed neighborhood, but I'm grateful for it now. I remember in high school the experience of all of the black kids sitting at one table and the white kids at another, and I also remember being about seven years old and it came to my mind that I could send a message about those differences. It was a topic that I had a number of conversations with Dennis Crane about.

DP: That was a tragic event when he passed away last year. It was also kind of humbling seeing how the whole community rallied around him for the benefit concert last summer.

GJ: It was incredible. He was an amazing guy; he stood for equality and the way that the community rallied together and worked together to help him was inspiring.

DP: How are things going for you these days?

GJ: I've never been as happy as I am now. I have my incredible wife, my seven-year-old daughter Savannah, lovely friends.

DP: What are you listening to?

GJ: Well, in my car I have about six Dylan cassettes, I have some Spanish music from Spain and the Beach Boys that my daughter likes to sing along to — she likes the harmonies. And I really like Lucinda Williams, Robert Johnson and the blues because it's a way to deliver a song in a simple way, and you can say whatever you want, but it has to be true.

DP: What can we expect to see at your show on Monday?

GJ: I'll be playing for at least two hours, and it'll be a bit of a retrospective, and I'll play some of the new songs from my up coming album and we're just going to have some fun and go on a trip.

DP: do you have a motto you live by?

GJ: Too bad and tough shit. Things don't go my way all the time and I think saying things like "positive thinking" is a cliché, and so many people I know think when something happens it's the end of the world and I'm training myself not to do that.

DP: Any final thoughts?

GJ: I'm not gonna stop 'til John Lee Hooker calls me.

Guy de Fraumeni's Hollywood In The Hamptons

Hobbling around a nice, easy and breezy place like Newport, R.I., my gait gets a little lighter because it's so much easier to avoid stepping into American Wedding, a third gross slice of American Pie. Back home on the East End my busy legs, automatically, by rote, carry me into the local movie houses and, they might have stumbled me into that movie. My boot-shod feet will also guide me into a wide circle away from my dentist's office. However, in this unfamiliar place, they all: legs, feet, etc/ (even socks) strayed me into The Secret Lives of Dentists and, am I glad they did! Part comedy and, a lot of perceptive everyday family life. You're thinking, "oh, like a TV sitcom." I'm thinkin', "I didn't think of it at the time but, yep, it's kind of like a sitcom. But, believe me, it's not." To begin with, a thoroughly sensitive script by Craig Lucas, based on a wonderful 1977 novella, "The Age of Grief", hones the domestic life of a dentist, his wife and three lovely girls to an edge as sharp, scratchy-uneasy as chalk on a slate. They are given luminous life by Campbell Scott and Hope Davis, not by performance, but by being them. Scott is such a spoiled baby boomer, his perfectly adjusted practice and home, need nothing. They have enough money resent just a fraction of the people on death row.

DP: How did you become involved in the play?

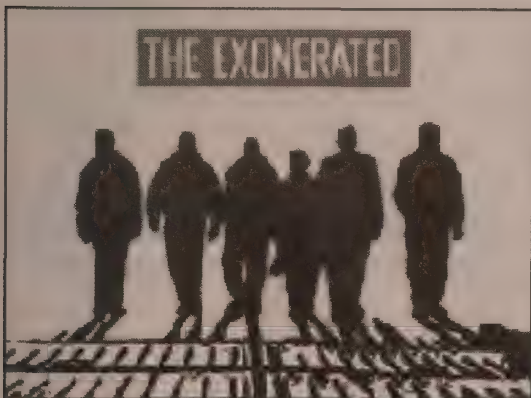

MF: I was invited to be a part of it and there are a number of distinguished actors who have played the roles. The first time I was in it was in Texas and I actually flew there with Kerry Max Cook who had been on death row in Texas for 22 years before he was exonerated.

DP: Have you met Sunny Jacobs the woman who you play?

MF: I did and I really feel like I learned something from her. I was amazed by her ability, and the abilities of the others who had been exonerated, to convey what they had endured, what they were able to hold onto of their humanity, and how they survived. And especially how they found hope when there isn't hope.

DP: How have you found the audience reacting to the play?

MF: It's not the typical gray-haired theater crowd that's coming to see the play. The audience tends to be younger, students and lawyers, concerned young people who want to stay after the play and talk and be near Kerry Max Cook because they're so amazed and moved by him.

DP: Mr. Cook will be playing himself here in the Hamptons; that should be a very intense experience.

MF: I'm very much looking forward to it, but it's also very upsetting. It's going to be a very difficult and emotional experience.

Dan's Papers: What's your position on the death penalty?

Montel Williams: I've always been a supporter of the death penalty, but I'm opposed to the way that it's

and friends, and yet – he's a brat. He knows he's a brat. He knows that even his great little girls know he's a brat. A methodical, proper husband and dad whose neurotic propriety hums under his day-by-day performance but, like a temperamental virtuoso you know the hum can grow to a strident crescendo of operatic proportions. His wife's singing with the local opera company, provokes in him a scenario of jealousy and vengeance. He's sure his wife is being unfaithful.

The ease of a prosperous middle class life does not always glide smoothly. For the dentist, there's the life that might have been. For the man with everything, there is always something more that he's missed. And, since he hasn't really grown up, his mind can dream up a whole lot. The director, Alan Rudolph (Afterglow), explores the dentist's public life as well as his secret lives, with layers of fantasy spread as evenly as the documentation. Flashing back and forth, director Rudolph weaves in Denis Leary as a scudzy, obnoxious patient who loudly gives discourses on relationships that scream cynical epithets that play on the dentist's bruised psyche, demonizing him. Leary materializes more and more, playing on the dentist's repressed behavior. Being the brat he is, repression helps to feed his opposition to do anything to help himself. When he and his family are hit by a stomach virus, he folds into a swoon. Leary's sneering stoke's the dentist's fever to a fire that melts his brain. Into the hot goo, a sexy image of his receptionist is fused with his ambition, the ones out of his "proper" reach. I realize the theme sounds familiar and it is, but, Mr. Rudolph's form of it is new and because I'm sure everyone will feel a garage full of knowing sympathy for the dentist guy. Even little girls will see their daddy in him and graciously accept the R-rating.

Open wide and accept the pain. The laughing gas makes it easy to take.

employed in this country. It's not a deterrent and I became involved in this project because it's an indictment of the system, not the death penalty.

DP: What are some of the faults in the system that the play reveals?

MW: There is a great deal of misconduct by prosecutors and police officers. There is blatant lying and the misuse of justice. And the play relies on transcripts and interviews that prove those points, but they are things that can be stopped.

DP: How did you prepare for the role?

MW: I did a lot of reading and spent a great deal of time looking at the current debate about the issue. And, as with any role, I played mind games with myself and examined the differences between the state of being powerful and being powerless.

DP: What has been the audience reaction?

MW: It's immensely rewarding working in theatre where you have that instantaneous audience reaction and you can sense the emotions of the people there.

And there are a couple of spots that evoke tears every time.

DP: What do you hope that people take away from the experience?

MW: afterwards people should stop and be forced to think. I want people to leave and be catalysts for change and it's something that you have to seek out then formulate your own opinion. That's what it's all about, being a part of the debate and coming to your own conclusions. —J.M.

ENTERTAINMENT IN THE HAMPTONS

From Opera to Broadway

Opera of the Hamptons season finale at Castello di Borghese Vineyards, where Ann Marie and Marco Borghese continue their dedicated support for the arts, was their ever-popular staging of 'From Opera to Broadway'. Barbara Giancola the Artistic Director and Atarah Hazzan the Music Director had compiled a very inventive blend of music of every genre, from Kurt Weill to Mozart, Gilbert and Sullivan and Sondheim, to name but a few and the large audience was in good party spirit with many of them bringing along their picnics.

Anyway, partway through an enthralling evening, we were treated to an accompaniment Barbara had not planned, when one of Long Island's very special impromptu 'Son et Lumiere' shows exploded with spectacular forked lighting and resonant thunderclaps. If they had known, I am sure their resourcefulness would have included some appropriate Wagner! As it was, this really was a true example of very professional performers who paid no heed to the potential dangers of the water with their amplifying equipment and no one missed a beat or a note and the audience went along with this calmness and continued to have a great time.

For who could fail to enjoy Eddie Peterson's change of pace, from the plaintive 'Mr. Cellophane' from 'Chicago' to the soulful 'Meadowlark' from 'The Baker's Wife'. Rosa D'Imperio, back once more showed her dramatic talents and versatility with Zarzuela music as well as doing great justice to Jerome Kern classics and some operatic arias.

Hayden de Witt has impressed audiences at previous productions with her Stage Directing skills but here she showcased a beautiful mezzo voice and a great stage presence in Mozartian arias and Sondheim. Similarly, Barbara Heller and Shira Devra Flam proved that classically trained singers can crossover to lighter roles with ease with music from 'Chicago', Johann Strauss, Jacques Brel and Sondheim.

Nor to be outdone, Michael Scott Harris, made a very impressive debut. He is an acclaimed Gilbert and Sullivan performer as he showed with the ever-popular Major General's song from 'Pinafore' and then went on to wow us with a beautiful Puccini duet from Madam Butterfly with Rosa

review: adult entertainment

This is not about a new sex shop in the Hamptons. This is about trying to find a quiet place to have dinner during the summer – and re-discovering a delightful musical performer as well as good food.

Last Monday evening, after completing my writing assignments for Dan's Papers, my husband and I decided to treat ourselves to a peaceful evening out. We drove to East Hampton's Maidstone Arms, which has three intimate dining areas. While deciding which room to eat in, I heard a gently-played version of "My Foolish Heart." Those mellifluous notes did it for me. I wanted to be in the Water Room where someone talented was playing the piano.

It was Chris Barrett, the popular "saloon singer," a weekend attraction at Bruce's (now Allison on the Beach) in Wainscott for so many years. I knew he had played in Westhampton Beach after Bruce's was sold, and that he played at The Firebird in Manhattan, but how nice to hear him in East Hampton.

Stepping down into the Maidstone's Water Room lounge, Chris gave us a quick nod and a big smile. There were half a dozen listeners seated in nooks with comfy chairs and tables, and the audience grew as evening's darkness settled in. Everyone was relaxed and Chris invited us to request favorite songs.

D'Imperio.

Talking of 'wowing', that is precisely what sixteen-year-old Nina Berman from Great Neck High School did. This young lady showed exceptional maturity and stage presence when she sang Sondheim's 'Broadway Baby' and followed this with an aria from 'Don Giovanni'. Later on in the evening, she confirmed her precocious promise

His baritone voice has deepened and matured, and he now delivers ballads with the emotional maturity that comes with living and understanding the stories the lyrics tell. Of course, when you're singing the words of Marilyn and Alan Bergman, Carolyn Leigh, Stephen Sondheim, Richard Rodney Bennett, Johnny Mercer and a host of other intelligent musical poets (Barrett's repertory is mammoth), it's almost impossible for a listener not to drift into a reverie of remembering.

Chris also does a good job on the uptempo songs such as Mary Grant's clever "I'm Too Old to Die Young," and Cole Porter's ever-popular "You're the Top." I talked with him on his break between sets and he told me that fans have been dropping in at the Maidstone Arms on Monday and Tuesday evenings, where he is performing through August 26.

Then he's on to his first full-fledged cabaret show, "I Gotta Make My Own Music," which debuts in Manhattan at Dillons (245 West 54 St.), September 17-19 and 24-26.

The idea for the show came to him when he was a guest soloist with the Milwaukee Symphony last year. "I'm a singer and I love to sing, and here I was with more than 1000 people listening to me and an orchestra backing me up. It is such a different experience—organizing a complete show around one theme and performing without interruption – that I decided I would like to do both kinds of performing."

The show at Dillons is a tribute to the singer/pianists who write and perform their own music – Elton John, Billy Joel, Blossom Dearie, Steve Allen, Neil Sedaka, Paul Simon, Barry Manilow, John Denver – his list goes on and on. Chris is playing a lot of the songs at the Maidstone Arms – just ask him – and you will hear lesser-known music by these composers such as Barry Manilow's wistful "When October Goes" with lyrics by Cy Coleman.

My husband and I did have a wonderful dinner while enjoying Chris's music. With Paul del Favero now as head chef at the Maidstone Arms, we chose from the Sun.-Thurs. prix fixe menu, but there's also a moderately-priced bistro menu. You can even choose from the regular menu in the Water Room.

The inn's guests and passers-by kept dropping by the Water Room all evening. There's no minimum or cover charge. Jane Hastay and Peter Martin Weiss play on Thursday and Friday evenings, and Todd Michaels is there on Saturday night. This is really "adult entertainment" – an intimate supper club with good food and accomplished performers.

– Jan Silver

when she sang 'I'll String Along With You' and 'My Funny Valentine'. In a world of show business where there is so much talent, Nina Berman gave a strong hint that she is definitely someone we will hear much more of in the years ahead, either in operatic roles or in musicals.

This twelfth season of Opera of the Hamptons has once again enabled opera lovers on eastern Long Island to have an opportunity to enjoy hearing some very talented young but already internationally known artists. Apart from the Borgheses, the Manhattan Mortgage Company, the Hampton Day School and financial aid from New York State and Suffolk County have majority assisted in the staging of these productions.

ENTERTAINMENT IN THE HAMPTONS

Take Five 2003 with Jan Silver

Entertainment this week centers on the tried-and-true of comedy, theater, classical music and jazz. The Off Broadway hit play The Exonerated has its Long Island debut at Guild Hall, East Hampton, with Mia Farrow, Billy Dee Williams and Montel Williams. The Smothers Brothers comedy duo are at Westhampton Beach Performing Arts Center on Saturday night, and Hal McKusick and his big band are the Sag Harbor Jazz Festival attraction on Saturday night. Also in Sag Harbor, the delightful musical The Boy Friend continues at Bay Street Theatre and singer/songwriter Garland Jeffreys plays there next Monday night.

The Hamptons Shakespeare Festival's updated Taming of the Shrew has its final performances at Agawam Park, Southampton, and Bridgehampton Chamber Music Festival plays its final concert on Saturday. Next Thursday, composer Victoria Bond's performance piece about James Joyce's outrageous Molly Bloom is at Guild Hall, and "Beatlemania Now" is a musical benefit for the Make-A-Wish Foundation at Westhampton Beach Performing Arts Center.

Well-known art historian Olivier Bernier, speaking about the unique cultural life of 1930s Paris on Sunday at Guild Hall, heads the list of this week-end's speakers, and the special film series have their final screenings this week. Pop music favorites coming to Amagansett's Stephen Talkhouse include The Radiators, Dave Bromberg, and Marcia Ball. The Hampton Classic Horse Show opens on Sunday at the Bridgehampton fairgrounds. For details, read on:

THEATER and COMEDY

The Exonerated, the true stories of six former death-row prisoners who were subsequently found innocent and released, is the Off Broadway award-winning play having its L.I. debut at Guild Hall, East Hampton, this week. The cast of 10, led by Mia Farrow, Billy Dee Williams and Montel Williams, is directed by Bob Balaban. Performances are Fri. and Sun. at 8 p.m., Sat. at 7 and 9:30 p.m. For tickets ($60), call the Guild Hall box office (631-324-4050) or www.ticketmaster.com.

Westhampton Beach Performing Arts Center brings in the legendary comic duo, Tom and Dick Smothers, on Saturday at 8:30 p.m. ($80-100). Their popular "Yo Yo Man" routine will be part of the show. (Friday night, the Missoula Children's Theatre will perform Red Riding Hood, with some local talent, at 7 p.m.; all tickets are $10). WHBPAC's box office telephone is 631-288-1500.

Sag Harbor's Bay Street Theatre continues its joyous revival of The Boy Friend, Sandy Wilson's flapper-style musical directed by its original Broadway star, Julie Andrews. Performances are Tues. through Sun. ($50-60). On Monday night, singer/songwriter Garland Jeffreys ("Wild in the Streets," "96 Tears") and group perform his special blend of folk, rock, reggae, salsa and soul ($35). Tickets are available at the box office (631-725-9500).

This is the last weekend to see Hampton Shakespeare Festival's "reality TV" take on The Taming of the Shrew. Bring the family and a picnic before sunset to Agawam Park (end of Job's Lane); the outdoor performance begins at 7:30 p.m. and a $15 donation is suggested.

MUSIC

The Bridgehampton Chamber Music Festival concludes its stellar 20th season on Saturday, 7:30 p.m., with "Around the world and back," music from Japan, New Zealand and the U.S. including an early Leonard Bernstein piece. The concert is at the Presbyterian Church, Main St.; call 631-537-6368 for tickets ($30 adults, $25 seniors, $10 children).

Hal McKusick and his big band will play the music of Count Basie, Duke Ellington, Thelonius Monk and others on Saturday at the intermittent but ongoing Sag Harbor Jazz Festival. The music starts at 8 p.m. in the Old Whalers' (First Presbyterian) Church; tickets are $35 (student discount tickets at the door) at L.I. Sound music stores, BookHampton, Sylvester & Co., Kramoris Gallery and Canio's Books.

Composer/conductor Victoria Bond, whose varied works have had several East End performances, has created a singing and spoken performance piece based on James Joyce's sexually-outspoken "Molly Bloom" character from Ulysses. "Molly ManyBloom," in the person of Metropolitan Opera soprano Carol Meyer, will sing the popular songs of the early 1900s plus Joyce's ribald text accompanied by a string quartet next Thursday, Aug. 28, at Guild Hall. The evening starts with actress Kate Mueth's reading of the Molly Bloom portion of Ulysses. The performance starts at 8 p.m.; for tickets ($28-30), call 631-324-4050.

The musical show "Beatlemania Now" will be at Westhampton Beach Performing Arts Center next Thursday, 8 p.m., as a benefit for the Make-A-Wish Foundation (tickets $50-60; call 631-288-1500). Popular performers at local clubs and restaurants: Amagansett's Stephen Talkhouse - The Radiators (Fri.), Dave Bromberg trio (Sat.), Marcia Ball (Wed.); East Hampton's Maidstone Arms - Chris Barrett (last chance Mon. & Tues.), Jane Hastay & Peter Martin Weiss (Fri. & Sun.), Todd Michaels (Sat.); Sag Harbor - blues with Jim Turner (Sun.) at Peter Miller; Bridgehampton - Kipling's Trio (Fri. & Sat.), Stefanie Cardinali & group at World Pie (Sun. brunch) and Pierre's (Sun. eve); Southampton - Belle's East; Quogue - Baby Moon.

FILM SERIES

The Westhampton Beach Performing Arts Center concludes its summer world cinema series with Respiro (Italy) playing at 7 and 9:30 p.m. Sun. through Tues. Southampton's Parrish Art Museum's Mon. night feature is Yellow Asphalt (Israel, 2000), tales of Israeli and European newcomers dealing with the Bedouin tribes in the Judean desert (8 p.m.). Guild Hall's film-noir series' final attraction is Orson Welles' Touch of Evil (Tues., 7:30 p.m.).

SPEAKERS (no charge unless noted)

The final "Fridays at Five" speaker at the Bridgehampton library is Chip Kidd ($15). BookHampton, East Hampton, has a busy weekend schedule. Merin Wexler (The Porno Girl and other stories) and Cindy Chupack (The Between Boyfriends Book) will read Fri. at 7 p.m. Ty Wenzel (Behind Bars: Tales of a Big City Bartender) reads Sat., 5:30 p.m., and Edward Klein discusses his controversial bestseller The Kennedy Curse on Sat. at 9 p.m. The East Hampton Historical Society's poetry marathon ends Sunday with poets Jody Winer-Cook and Jo Carney reading at the Amagansett Marine Museum, 4 p.m.

Author and art historian Olivier Bernier will talk about the social, intellectual and art worlds of 1930s Paris on Sunday, 5 p.m., at Guild Hall, East Hampton. This is the annual Pollock-Krasner House lecture; tickets are $8-10 and are available at the box office (631-324-4050).

SPECIAL EVENT

The Hampton Classic Horse Show opens on Sunday at noon with the "World of the Horse" show and a parade of many dog breeds followed by a dog-agility performance. Reserved-seat tickets are $15 and $25 (online at www.hamptonclassic.com). There is no competition on Monday, but all the shops are open. Next Thursday is Seniors Day with free admission for seniors and next Friday is Fiesta Day. Saturday, Aug. 30, is Kids Day and next Sunday is Grand Prix Day. General admission to the fairgrounds on Snake Hollow Road, Bridgehampton (between Montauk Highway and Scuttlehole Rd.) is $5 per person or $15 per car.

HOME GROWN ...BY BRIAN HALWEIL

As Labor Day fast approaches, if you haven't yet planted your vegetable garden, then it's sort of like you got to the party too late. The buffet is picked-over and stale. The good booze are gone, as are the beautiful people. You might still be able to scare up some fun, but you'd better act fast and you're going to have to work for it.

Come to grips with the fact that you will not pull any potato plants dangling with meaty tubers from your own ground and that the only Jack O'Lanterns you will pick will be at several dollars a pound. As your neighbors watch their tomatoes turn from green to ripe, it's best to be polite and congratulate them, and hope you are better prepared next year.

Still, there is salvation for the delinquent gardener, and the waning days of summer are the right time to begin your winter garden. The horticultural gods have blessed humanity with hardy crops that sprout and mature quickly for immediate gratification.

"There's just time to do carrots and beets," said Scott Chaskey, farm manager at Quail Hill in Amagansett. Year-round gardening guru Elliot Coleman plants carrots in early August and leaves them in the ground as the cold Maine winter sets in, concentrating the sugars to create candied carrots.

"You can also seed things like radish, daikon radish, parsnips, turnips, and anything turnipy," Scott suggested, perhaps creating a new word. "It's a really nice time to do greens, including cold-hardy oriental greens like tatsoi, as well as broccoli raab. And you can still do mesclun blends."

Johnny's Selected Seeds (www.johnnyseeds.com) and Territorial Seed Company ([alseed.com\) both offer an array of greens that are suitable for late summer planting, including Johnny's Allstar Gourmet Lettuce Mix which yields its first crop in 28 days, and the 30 day Provencal Winter Mix from Territorial.](http://www.territori-

<div data-bbox=)

If your garden has blank spaces left by recent potato or bean harvests, consider broadcasting radish or greens seeds over these areas. In a month or two, you might also cover these areas with winter cover crops that will blanket the soil for winter, including clover, oats, rye, vetch, and field peas.

Speaking of peas, Jim Crockett, author of the outdated, but genuine, Crockett's Victory Garden, adapted from his PBS series, says that "I never let a year go by without planting a crop of peas in August to pick in October." Peas, spinach, and other crops that thrive in the cool weather of spring also like the autumn conditions.

"You could try cabbage and broccoli transplants if you could find them," Scott advised. "It's been a very strange year," Scott admitted, "and perhaps the warm weather will stretch well into the fall."

But, he cautioned that farming after August is "like a whole other season. Most plants respond so much to daylight hours," Scott said. As the days begin to shrink, so does the palette of crops available to the gardener.

Most summer vegetables, including tomatoes, corn, and squash, are accustomed to increasing day length and start to bring their lives to a close as days get shorter: a sure sign that temperatures will also cool.

It would be too late now to plant anything from the Allium family, those onion-scented herbs that include onions, chives, garlic, leeks and shallots, and are highly sensitive to day light. Some onion varieties demand 12-hour days in order to form full bulbs. Others require 13, and still others as many as 14, and even mature plants will not put out without the proper number of daytime hours. July was the last chance to plant most members of this family.

However, shallots (onions which have the habit of dividing into a cluster of small bulbs) and scallions (a name sometimes used for shallots, but also popularly used by Americans to refer to young bunching or green onions that are pulled before the bulb has formed) can be planted until a few weeks before the ground freezes. Garlic cloves should go in the ground in October for a harvest the following summer.

Parsley, popularly considered tangential, but a sensual heavy-weight when properly treated, is another vegetable that can tolerate the cold and last through the winter with the help of a straw or leaf mulch.

Kale will also live over winter in our climate. Some gardeners argue that you haven't really lived until you've dusted snow off a curled emerald leaf of Toscano and clipped it for a winter soup. To assure that the plants are established, the 1957 edition of Rodale's Encyclopedia of Organic Gardening recommends getting kale seed in the ground no later than six weeks before the first frost, which usually happens around the third or fourth week in October in our area, or about ten weeks from now.

I recently ordered seed for radish, turnips, Chinese cabbage, parsley, and fall and winter varieties of both lettuce and spinach. The sales person asked me if I was buying the seed for this year. "Yes," I said, not realizing that she had scanned my address and calculated my climatic zone. "You might have time, but you're a bit late," she theorized.

Better late than never.

Details, Details, Details

Executive Detailing

By now, your car should shine brilliantly as if you just bought it, and if you followed my instructions, the black moldings should still be black. However, I know full well that most of them aren't; they are probably black with a chalky white spot here and there. Don't worry- you aren't the only one. I've gotten a few calls starting with "I've ruined my car!" and ending with "Oh is that all that's wrong?" Everyone makes this mistake, so no one should feel bad. I'm going to give you a few ways to remove the wax on your moldings, bumpers, and the ever-popular wax in the cracks of the moldings.

Here's everyone's shopping list. Unless you already have these items, they are great to keep in your garage or trunk, but please keep them in a Rubbermaid container because they stay separate from the rest of the car, and if one bottle breaks, you're not cleaning up the Exxon Valdez spill from your floors or carpeting. It also keeps your kids safe since they can't get near the chemicals.

Here's what else you will need: quick detailer's mist (you should have this already), a short stiff bristled brush, (you should be able to press it against your skin and have it not hurt at all; PLEASE DO NOT USE STEEL WOOL OR ANYTHING EVEN CLOSE TO IT! You will take off the paint) and a micro-fiber towel, which again you should already have. Spray the quick detailer's mist over the molding or area that has too much wax on it liberally (about three to four sprays) and use the brush carefully and lightly at first so that you can get a feel for it. Please don't rush - this isn't the type of task you should rush through. Rub from right to left with the brush and finish with the micro-fiber towel. You should now have black moldings again, and you will not have to re-

wax. If for some reason this didn't work, or if your results are less than desirable, here is a second relatively safe step. Add a few drops of Palmolive liquid soap to warm water and then use the brush and this mixture to treat the moldings. You should have clean moldings at this point, but if you used step 2, you will need to re-wash your car with car soap and then re-wax the areas that were touched by the Palmolive soap mixture. If you don't trust yourself to keep wax off the moldings, you may use blue painter's tape (it will not ruin your car) and tape the moldings to prevent the wax from getting on them. I hope this helps, and as always, you can call me or e-mail me if you're stuck or have any questions at all. I'm always available for my readers and my clients.

About Gardening....with Annette

PERENNIALS IN CONTAINERS

Most of the time, perennials are best grown in the ground. However, there are occasions when it's desirable to grow them as potted plants.

When the garden soil is so poor that it's nearly impossible to successfully grow plants in it, container plantings can be the solution. This can also be the answer for soil-less locations such as an apartment balcony, deck or patio. A third reason for raising container grown perennials is to allow you to have those varieties that are not winter hardy in your climate. By growing them in containers, it's possible to easily move them into the house or a special shelter over the winter, then back into the garden in the spring. Finally, it's sometimes nice to grow perennials as indoor plants providing attractive displays within your home. After all, most houseplants are, in fact, perennials that are tropical and therefore not hardy for growing outdoors in most parts of the country.

Because of the extra care and space year-round container-grown plants require, you'll probably limit yourself to growing only those that are your special favorites, perennials that look beautiful both while they're in bloom and when they are not and those that add appreciably to the decor of your home and garden.

Some good choices to grow in containers: Ferns, geraniums, lavender, Russian sage, yellow cone-flower, bleeding heart, rex begonia. I have had a begonia, the larger variety growing in pots in the house for over eighteen years now! The same plant also. I keep them in clay pots...they are gorgeous. I move them outside in the spring, spray them for hitchhikers, trim back, give cuttings away and bring them in. Clearly they do so much better outside, it seems as if they hold their breath all winter long! Plants need to have good drainage, frequent feedings and re-potting as needed. An easy way to check for this is by knocking the plant out of it's home every six months. Check to see how matted the roots have become, then shift to a slightly larger pot with more good soil. I like the Miracle-Gro. It works!

Well, now it the time to see how well a job you did in the spring with your fertilizer and pre-emergence killer. The crabgrass is now out in all it's glory here in the Northeast and it is sticking up the highest and greenest. Show off! If you have a neighbor as I do, who refuses to treat his, then you are in for trouble almost every spring and fall. He claims if he destroys his, he will have no lawn at all...I often wonder what he thinks he has now! The good thing about crabgrass is that it is an annual and it dies back in the cold. So...what you have to do now is wait it out. You could go out and purchase a spot treatment for crabgrass or pull by hand depending on your situation or you can fertilize normally starting now to October. If you choose to fertilize, wait six weeks and overseed all the areas which contain the crabgrass. Make sure you choose a good seed, I can't stress that enough. If you buy cheap store bought seed, I bet you will be getting a good portion of that stuff you are trying to get rid of. Read the label. Go to a county extension and see what they recommend for your area. There are some places you can buy pure

Kentucky Blue or pure Bermuda, whatever you are in the market for other than weeds. Mine is getting so bad on that one side of my home that I may have to resort to killing the area with Round Up and then waiting the six weeks and overseed the area right on top of the white dead grass. You can do that, it acts as a mulch keeping the new seed the right temperature, and keeps the birds away. On GardenWeb.com I read someone mentioning you can sprinkle Baking Soda on the crabgrass and within five days it turns black. Then I guess you can pull it. I don't know, I'll try anything at this point.

Keep those hands dirty!

About Face.....with Annette

NEWBIES AND FREEBIES (SORT OF)

New at the Lancome counter at Lord & Taylor, Resolution D-Contraxol. Intensive Anti-Wrinkle Treatment Dermo-crease Reducer. Hmmm sounds interesting. Dermo-crease, that's a new twist to a wrinkle! They say that daily facial movements create lines that deepen over time, known as dermo-creases. Lancome brings you the first wrinkle treatment with D-Contraxol that targets these 'creases' and existing wrinkles. Immediate results are smoother skin and within four weeks the number, depth and size of wrinkles are supposed to be significantly reduced. 1.7 oz is $68. So, if you pick that up, your gift of choice is (with a purchase of $25 or more) Sophisticates or Romantics. A full size LipColour, Maquiriche EyeColour Quartet, Blush Subtil Powder Blush, plus, Amplicils Mascara, black, the Resolution D-Contraxol described above, Change Purse, Eyelash Curler and a Cosmetics Case... cute!

At Macy's and new from Clinique is their new vibrant fragrance, Clinique Simple...easy to remember. They describe it as a sheer, vibrant fragrance that surrounds you with an unexpected warmth and surprising depth. The perfume spray is 1.7 oz or $39.50 and 3.4 for $53.50. Don't see any gifts in sight though!

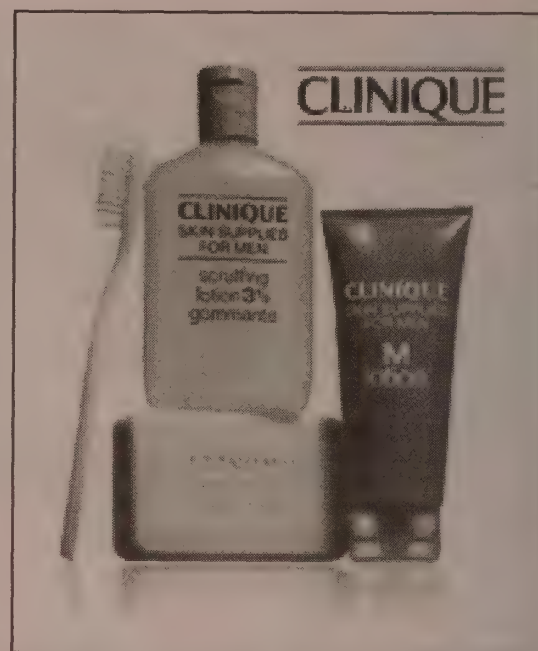

Now at Bloomingdales, Estee Lauder has a lovely gift with purchase going on. Seven pieces include.. in a choice of warm or cool shades... New Pure Color Lip Vinyl, Pure Color Long Lasting Lipstick..full size, and a two piece eye shadow. Plus, Perfectionist Correcting Serum for Lines and Wrinkles. New DayWear Plus Multi Protection Anti-Oxidant Creme SPF 15, Estee Lauder Pleasures intense Eau de Parfum Spray and a tote bag, a $75 value all for just a purchase of $28.50. Not bad, sounds like a deal! A good suggestion to pick up would be Estee Lauder's Idealist Micro-D Deep Thermal Refinisher which is a new gentle, at-home alternative to microdermabrasion. The perfect partner to Idealist Skin Refinisher, Idealist Micro-D delivers dramatic skin resurfacing benefits with its exclusive TripleSphere Refinishing System. Deep, thermal action warms skin to help open, detoxify and minimize pores. Idealist Micro-D Deep Thermal Refinisher is 2.5 fl.oz for $45 and the Idealist Skin Refinisher is 1.0fl.oz. at $45 or 1.7fl oz for $72.

And while you are at Macy's take a look at Kenneth Cole's Black for men. You can get a Cole New York Umbrella with your purchase of $58 or more. They suggest: Eau de Toilette Spray 1.7 oz. $45 or 3.4 oz. for $58. Perhaps an After Shave Splash? 3.4 oz $52 or Kenneth Cole Deodorant, 2.6 oz for $18.

Picking up these little offerings now can make great stocking stuffers for the holidays. Don't overlook them when shopping!

Scents of Summer... Barclay Crocker introduces a posy of fragrant delights as the month of Harvest begins. HEALTH & BEAUTY

Maintenance My Dear, Maintenance

Who said beauty is only skin-deep? Certainly not anyone who has broken off a promising relationship, or suffered a plunge in self-confidence, thanks to crow's feet, saddlebags, or a scowl embedded in your forehead. Appearance, in fact, has an enormous impact on emotional well being and quality of life, for people of all ages and for men as well as women.

An accomplished and renowned plastic surgeon and Bridgehampton resident, Dr. Michelle Copeland, shows how easy it can be for just about anyone to improve his or her appearance – and transform their entire outlook. It's all in her informative uplifting book, Change Your Looks, Change Your Life (HarperResource; January, 2003; $27.95. The book, packed with quick fixes and cosmetic surgery solutions, is worth every penny and most enjoyable reading, shows you how Dr. Copeland is a firm believer in cosmetic wellness – making physical changes for the emotional and health benefits. Dr. Copeland presents a comprehensive, detailed and realistic guide to the many cosmetic options available, with an emphasis on the least invasive and most effective, safe and affordable procedures.

This year, Dr. Copeland has personally developed a very unique line of products. Each ingredient is hand selected and tested herself and her patients before it is released to the public.

Nobody understands your special skin care needs better than Dr. Michelle Copeland, preeminent plastic surgeon, biochemist, and author. She has dedicated her entire distinguished career to helping women and men look younger, feel healthier and live better.

Now Dr. Copeland has applied her extensive knowledge of biochemistry to create effective skin care solutions for you, each personally developed from the hundreds of formulas she's evaluated over the years. Here are some of the ways Dr. Copeland's products can help you:

- Maintaining supple, vibrant, healthy-looking skin
- Reduce signs of aging and erase fine lines
- Protect and restore skin from sun damage, free radical and environmental damage
- Fade away "age spots" and other discolorations.

For each of her products, Dr. Michelle Copeland has carefully evaluated and selected only the most efficacious ingredients – including natural ingredients such as Vitamins A, E, and C, thyme, zinc, arbutin, soy, cucumber and others that have been proven to promote healthy, younger-looking skin. HEALTH & BEAUTY

Give Your Body An Oil Change!

Do you know what the healthiest cooking oil is? Most people say "olive oil". Some even say "grape-seed" or "canola". Science now shows that all those answers are wrong.

As a traditionally-trained physician who practices nutritional medicine, I've reviewed the studies and the bottom line is that the very best culinary oil is Australian macadamia nut oil. (Contrary to popular belief macadamia nuts are native to Australia, not Hawaii.)

In a nutshell, macadamia nut oil is richest in the monounsaturated fats that make the heart-healthy Mediterranean way of eating so healthy. Besides being deliciously nutty and buttery, it also has a very high smoke point (410°), allowing the fatty acid composition to stay intact while frying and baking at temperatures that make ordinary vegetable oils toxic.

There is no question that the right oils and fats help us live longer and better. Monounsaturated fats have been scientifically proven to help protect our cardiovascular systems. Macadamia nut oil is significantly higher than any other oil in monounsaturated fats. Monounsaturated fats help lower LDL cholesterol (this is the bad one that can lead to an increased risk for heart attacks and strokes) and raise HDL (the good cholesterol) as well as help normalize triglycerides. Monounsaturates also reduce the risk of insulin-resistance and diabetes, and may even help prevent breast cancer. Macadamia nut oil is clearly the oil of choice for any low or moderate carbohydrate plans, such as my Thin For Good program and has no more calories than any other oil.

The temperature at which a fat burns is known as the "smoke point." Trans Fats (the worst fats) are formed when oil is overheated, in some cases well before the smoke point. Olive oil deteriorates in just months at room temperature and has a smoke point, depending on age and quality, of 325°F or below – lower than temperatures used in baking and sautéing. Premium macadamia nut oil is very stable, with its high smoke point it is much less likely than other oils to develop the unhealthy trans fatty acids, and has a shelf-life of 2 years.

There is a huge difference in macadamia nut oils, so choose MacNut Oil™ as it is the only brand that has all the qualities of a superior product:

Made in Australia where the climate and soil are optimal for producing the most delicious macadamia nuts and premium quality oil.

Cold pressed without the use of heat or chemicals and is created in a plant where no other nuts or peanuts are processed (preventing the possibility of allergic reaction.)

Deeper in golden color indicating it is richer in flavor and higher in Vitamin E and other beneficial properties

Kosher and Australian Heart Association approval.

Chefs Choose MacNut Oil™ – Tom Valenti, Chef of the hot Manhattan restaurant Ovest recommends MacNut Oil™ because of its ability to hold up to heat yet be delicate enough to use as a finishing oil. The qualities of this oil have inspired him to create exciting new dishes, which have been featured weekly here in Dan's Papers. Doug Rodriguez of Ola in New York City also features MacNut oil in his kitchen.

Featured in the Dining & Wine section of the New York Times, Florence Fabricant says, "MacNut gives homemade mayonnaise a nice earthy touch and is excellent in chicken salad or for frying potatoes and mushrooms."

Where to Buy MacNut Oil™ – It can be found in the Hamptons at Citarella and Barefoot Contessa and in New York City at Zabars, Grace's Marketplace and Fairway, as well as health food stores around the country. MacNut Oil™ may also be ordered from www.macnutoil.com other skin care products offered today, Dr. Copeland's are formulated with greater strength for extraordinarily effective results.

I am always looking for a newer, modern, and aggressive face and body products that will improve my skin, and give me a more vibrant, healthier, happier look. I tried most of these skin care products and I am happy to report that there is a noticeable difference in my skin. Here are some of the products developed by Dr. Michelle Copeland, D.M.D., M.D. F.A. C.S., P.C.

- Daily Cleanser: This pH balanced, alternative to soap, gently and effectively purifies and refreshes the skin without dryness or irritation ($28 /3.5 oz.)

- Daily Normalizing Toner: The product restores the skins' natural acid balance and helps eliminate bacteria and maintain a healthy surface environment, while it conditions and firms the skin ($24/8 oz.).

- Revitalizing Formula with Vitamins C & E: A special blend of exfoliating acids promote skin renewal and assist Vitamins A, C and E to protect skin from free radical and environmental damage. Erases fine lines and fades discoloration's, restoring skin vitality ($115/2 oz.).

- SPF – 45 Mist Sun Block: With its unique formulation of clear, zinc oxide, powerful antioxidants and soothing aloe, invisible broad spectrum Sun Block does what others can't do. Blocks both ultraviolet B-light (the rays that burn) and the longer wave ultraviolet A-light which penetrates the skin more deeply. The best sun protection possible, and it's PABA and fragrance free ($special introductory price $30/4 oz.).

- Pigment Blocker: Oil-free solution reduces age spots, scars and other skin discoloration's using natural ingredients that block production of melanin. Zinc, Vitamin E and other nutrients actively promote skin renewal ($60/2 oz.).

- Daily Moisturizer: An everyday moisturizer with powerful antioxidants that help keep skin soft while it promotes the absorption of water and optimizes the skins natural moisture ($48/ 3.5 oz.).

- Skin Hydrating Mist: This ultra-fine, easily absorbed spray infuses the skin with moisture making it soft and supple without using harsh minerals, chemicals or additives ($10/8 oz.).

- AHA Skin Smoothing Cream: Facial cream containing AHA and soothing cucumber stimulates new skin cell growth and reduces the appearance of fine lines. Skin looks softer, smoother and more radiant. ($45/2 oz.).

- Advanced AHA Skin Smoothing Lotion: Natural acids and cucumber extract help to exfoliate and regenerate skin cells. Works on the face, neck, upper chest and may be used on your hands, elbows, feet and body to make skin softer and smoother ($48/3.5 oz.).

- Enhanced AHA Body Smoothing Lotion: Luxurious body lotion that gently exfoliates and moisturizes, relieving dry, rough skin and restoring skin's natural glow ($58/3.5 oz.).

Skin Care is beautifully packaged in eco-friendly sea glass, remember, when your skin looks fresh and radiant and feels soft and supple, it announces that you are a healthy, vibrant, active person.

Police Blotter

East Hampton Town Police responded to numerous vehicle-related crimes this past week. A Bowling Green man called police when he found his 1992 Geo Metro tipped up on its side in his driveway on Friday. The 56-year-old man told police that it had to have happened during an 11 minute time span early that morning. Extensive damage was reported to the vehicle's driver's side, but the exact cost of repair was not available.

Some more vehicular vandalism was reported this week, this time in Amagansett. Last Saturday a Manhasset man called police when he discovered the hood ornaments had been ripped from two of his Jaguars as said cars sat parked in his Bluff Road, Amagansett driveway.

A Bridgehampton woman told police that she almost hit by a Jeep as the driver made a sharp turn in front of her on Newlight Road. When she yelled, "Nice driving," at the vehicle, the operator turned around and an argument erupted. She reported the incident the next day just to have it on record.

A 2003 Ford Explorer in Springs was the target of a few airborne eggs last Tuesday night. The owner, an Oakledge Lane man told police that the chicken embryos caused $150 in damage to the new vehicle's paint.

On the water, a 42-year-old East Quogue man was arrested for BWI in Sag Harbor. The harbormaster saw the boat being driven in an improper manner and stopped it to investigate. Village police administered a sobriety test and made the arrest.

As police dealt with land and sea-related vehicular crimes, criminals took to the air strips. Two plane owners at the Montauk Airport reported that someone had siphoned gasoline from their tanks without permission. One man reported the loss of six gallons, another reporting about fifteen gallons missing.

Police arrived at a Hampton Bays residence on Sunday when a woman hit her husband in the head. According to police, the intoxicated woman was in violation of an order of protection when she entered the Squiretown Road home. She was arrested for criminal contempt in the first degree.

Police are investigating a crime that was committed over the internet this past month. A Baiting Hollow man is ticked off, for good reason, because he bought a $1,535 watch from someone on eBay. Since the money was sent last month he has not received the time piece.

The Wading River Field and Tennis Club suffered a loss last week that appears to be no one's fault but the heartless thief who remains unknown. According to police, someone stole three coolers which contained an unknown amount of alcohol.

An even colder crime was reported in Amagansett on Monday. According to the Beach Hut at the Atlantic Avenue Beach, someone broke into their freezer, causing $200 in damage, and stole a cool $600 worth of ice cream. Police are still investigating, but have ruled out that whiney five-year-old brat that is always in front of me on line who can never decide between the Choco-Taco and the Snowcone.

After responding to a Lynn Avenue residence Sunday morning to assist an unconscious 23-year-old man suffering from a drug overdose, Southampton Town Police were moved to obtain a search warrant from a Town Justice. Once back inside the Hampton Bays home, investigating officers recovered an unbelievable arsenal of drug paraphernalia, illegal and prescription drugs and weapons, as well as $10,000 cash. Among the confiscated items were more than a half ounce of cocaine, 13 bags of heroin, 50 ecstasy pills, psychedelic mushrooms, 260 Diazepam pills, over 200 xanax pills, a small weight of marijuana, several types of anabolic steroids, drug packaging materials, an assortment of prescription drugs, a 9mm handgun, two pairs of brass knuckles, a black jack, a knuckle knife, chuka sticks, a cane sword and, according to police, other dangerous weapons. Needless to say, the man was arrested on numerous charges.

While police were "putting out fires" of their own last week, a group of teenagers were reported to be starting a fire on a beach in Montauk. A local hotel resident called police as he watched the boys take wooden pallets from the local IGA and stack them on the beach, burning them a few at a time. Police responded to control the fire and instructed the teens in replacing the unused pallets where they belonged.

Dan's Letters

GO FLY A KITE

Dear Dan,

After years of missing your kite fly, we finally made it! It was the best display of kiting and our first display of kiting. The multi-winged, box, hexagon shapes were outstanding, along with historical Red Baron and space shuttle kites. A background Dixieland band, jugglers, portrait artists and all set at the edge of the ocean.

Dan, I've only known you through your descriptive writings of the 747 emergency landing at Mattituck Airport and your survival of a New York couple living on seagulls stoned by them at Orient Point. However, the white-hatted stand-in for you (ala Saddam Hussein) at the kite fly was a disappointment. He no more looked like you than I do. He did a good job, so pay him but next time, come see the kites fly. It's a great show!

DUKE DOING GOOD

Dear Dan,

I very much appreciate your printing my environmental speech. As I told you in my last letter this is a great help when it comes to our raising funds for our Environmental Resource Center here at Camp.

Incidentally, I noted in your mentioning that I had announced a donation of land for preservation. I must correct this impression by stating that actually I had put this land in a Trust for my family and the Trust sold it to the Town. The Trust had received offers from private entities, which had intended to develop and build houses on this land.

My hope had always been that it remain a Preserve. Happily, that is the case.

With warmest regards and respect,
Tony D. Duke

We stand corrected. —D.R.

NO DUNE FOR ME

Dear Dan,

Hello! My name is Daria Kaner. I am 11-years old and a huge fan of your paper. I am writing this letter to talk to you about Dune Hampton.

I have a strong belief that Dune Hampton should not be formed! Dune Hampton would be a village founded on a principal of selfishness and arrogance. I think that Dune Hampton would be formed for superfrivolous reasons that were highly exaggerated. The people in Dune Hampton do not want to break away from south Hampton because the town oppresses them. They wish to do so merely because they do not want to face the fact that they are responsible for the environmental stewardship of their property. Even the thought sickens me. The day Dune Hampton is formed will be a dark day for all who have cared for Long Island's environment. It is also ridiculous to say that Southampton's coastal legislation would be an economic drain. It is well known that many citizens of the proposed village are exceptionally wealthy. My condolences go out to Steve Kenny, who worked long and hard on the coastal legislation, which soon may come to naught. If Long Island ever needed a friend for nature, it is now. If Dune Hampton is formed, we can only expect a large part of our pristine beaches to be ill managed, if not destroyed. I can only hope Dune Hampton will never be more than an idea.

Respectfully yours,
David Kaner (Age 11)
Sag Harbor

If you wrote this, it's amazing. —D.R.

OUI, OUI MON CHERI

Dear Dan,

The fact that I can't receive the above message (don't ask me why) at least makes a good excuse to say hello, and to say once again thank you for your papers. They are such fun to read... and in winter months are eminently recyclable as fire starters. David's column is establishing itself nicely thank you — one I enjoyed very much was "trying to date the girl." I enjoyed being young(er) and am most grateful not to have to do it again. It's still your busy season, won't take your time now — just, as 'they' say in France, a 'coucou.'

Dear Dan,

You refer to Manorville as "a lower middle class community," which is hardly correct given the preponderance of homes in the $500,000 range and new condos starting at $375,000. Also Riverhead is 10 miles away.

LEGAL ANNOUNCEMENTS

At an IAS Term, Part 20, of the Supreme court of the State of New York, held in and for the County of Nassau, at the Courthouse located at 100 Supreme Court Drive, Mineola, New York 11501, on August 11, 2003. Honorable Sra B. Warshawsky Justice, In the matter of the Application of BARRY FORTUS, a holder of 50% of all outstanding shares of CHOICE DISTRIBUTION INC. entitled to vote in an election of directors, for the judicial dissolution of CHOICE DISTRIBUTION, INC. Index no. 11976-03 Hon- Warshawsky order to show cause. Petitioner against BRIAN SWEENEY, Respondent. Upon reading and filing the affirmation of Thomas J. Mc Namara, duly affirmed the 1st day of August, 2003, the Petition of Petitioner, BARRY FORTUS, verified the first day of August, 2003, and the exhibits annexed thereto, it is ORDERED, that Respondent BRIAN SWEENEY show cause at an IAS Part 20 of this Court, 100 Supreme Court Drive, Mineola, New York 11501, on September 23, 2003, at 9:30 a.m., or as soon thereafter as counsel may be heard, why an order should not be entered granting Petitioner the following relief:

(1) pursuant to Business Corporation Law S1104 (a), an order and judgment dissolving CHOICE DISTRIBUTION, INC., on the ground that the directors are so divided respecting the management of the management of the corporation's affairs that the votes required for action by the Board can not be obtained, and on the ground that there is internal dissension and two or more factions of shareholders are so divided that dissolution would be beneficial to the shareholders;

(2) pursuant to Business Corporation Law S1115, a preliminary injunction enjoining and restraining Respondent from expanding any funds of CHOICE DISTRIBUTION, INC. for the payment of his legal fees and expenses incurred in connection with this proceeding;

(3) pursuant to CPLR 602 (a) consolidating, or ordering a joint trial, of this dissolution proceeding with the action pending in this court entitled FORTUS V. SWEENEY, index No: 9676/03 which seeks the removal of Brian Sweeney as a director and officer of CHOICE DISTRIBUTION, INC. for cause pursuant to B.C. L. S706 (d) and S716 (c) the "Removal Action", on the ground that the Removal Action and this dissolution proceeding present common questions of fact and law; and

(4) such other and further relief as may be just and proper.

ORDERED, that pending further order of this Court, both parties are enjoined and restrained from expending funds of CHOICE DISTRIBUTION, INC. for the payment of legal fees and expenses in connection with this proceeding; and sufficient cause appearing therefore, it is further ORDERED, that publication in compliance with the provisions of the Business Corporation Law shall be made in Dan's Papers, a newspaper in general circulation in Suffolk County, and sufficient cause appearing therefore, it is further ORDERED, that service of a copy of this Order and Verified Petition with Index number and date of filing endorsed thereon, together with the papers upon which it is based, be served upon the respondent pursuant to SPLR 308 (1) or (2), the 10 day completion of service is waived, and all other interested persons, in the manner prescribed in BCL S1106 and upon the State Tax Commission, on or before August 13, 2003, be deemed good and sufficient service thereof. CRAZED by the crowds?...

TIRED of TRAFFIC JAMS?.... BORED with the beach?

Move UP in the world!

Escape... to Highland Estates, Sullivan County's new horse-lover's paradise! Enjoy invigorating, majestic Catskill mountain vistas from your breathtaking 3 to 5 acre homesite featuring gorgeous glacial rock outcroppings, fields of wildflowers and tall, cool stands of fragrant pine trees gently sloping toward our exclusive equestrian center and our luxurious day spa. Take a brisk horseback ride on miles of enchanting wooded trails, indulge in a tranquil morning walk or treat yourself to a well-deserved massage and facial at our wonderful spa. And in the evening, rub elbows with celebrities while you relax to the music of the New York Philharmonic - just minutes away at the new cultural center in Bethel - or experience the glittering excitement at one of the fabulous proposed casinos. All these pleasures and much more await you at Highland Estates! Ahhh...! This is the life!...

At the heart of the Catskill Mountains in the lovely town of Barryville in Sullivan County (dubbed "the new Hamptons" by Newsday July 11, 2003) Highland Estates is a private community of custom log homes gently nestled on serene 3 to 5 acre mountain homesites. There are no "cookie cutter" homes here! Your home will be meticulously custom built to your specifications by outstanding craftsmen using the only the finest materials. It will be placed on its own land in such a way as to ensure its complete privacy. Furthermore, since we firmly believe in preserving the natural beauty of the landscape, each home is built to conform with its natural setting and with as little environmental impact as possible. The only things you will ever see from your windows will be those created by nature!

Move up to the serene country life you've always dreamed about and truly deserve! Several prime parcels are still available but availability is limited so please call today! Highland Estates...a quality community created by Mountain Partners.

Dear Customer,

Thank you for considering our company for your fencing needs. I would like to tell you about Consumer Fence, as well as educate you about our industry. There are some key points you need to be made aware of as you are in the process of making a large investment. There are many options and styles for you to choose from. That is why it is so important to ask questions and to know the product. In the outline to follow, you will learn what it is you need to look for when deciding on a fence.

1. Knowledge of the Product

You should know exactly what you are receiving as far as quality and material components. As you know, P.V.C. has become the most popular fencing product. The plastic division of our company has continually increased 30% each year for the last three years. Research the type of vinyl being used. We fabricate (build on our premises) "virgin vinyl" or "mono extruded." This is true vinyl in its purest form. It is the strongest, will hold up to the elements better and should not discolor. On the other hand others use "co-extruded vinyl" which can be recycled materials on the inside and virgin only on the outer layer. This is a cheaper route for other companies to take. The construction of all the privacy panels include a 2" x 8" bottom rail. This prevents sagging at the bottom of your fence, obviously a very important detail to ask about. The gate, whether you choose one or two remains the most important element of your fence. We build our gates on a 5' x 5' frame. The gates are thick and rigid. This creates a solid and sturdy beginning for the years of use to come. Inside the frame of our gate are sockets which hold the gate together. We then hang the gates on stainless steel hardware which holds up the best compared to all other materials.

2. Workmanship

Your job will be done with the finest precision and knowledge in the industry. The installers working for Consumer Fence in all three locations are professionals who have been with us for over 12 years. Fencing is a seasonal business, and I have made a commitment to keep all of my employees in their job for all twelve months of the year. Here at Consumer Fence we are proud of our 92% employee retention rate. Most companies lay their staff off at the end of the season. This usually causes what I like to call "company jumping." When this occurs, the customer winds up with an inexperienced, unprofessional crew to install their fence. The end result being a very unpleasant, frustrating experience.

From Consumer Fence as well as Homeland Vinyl Products, Inc., you will receive a lifetime transferable warranty. That speaks for itself. Virgin vinyl - the only product to use.

3. Pricing

We believe your price quote is also an important detail in your decision. Many consumers wonder why there can be such drastic differences in price between companies. There are a few different reasons why:

A. Material being purchased in bulk, lowering cost.

B. The quality of the grade you are purchasing.

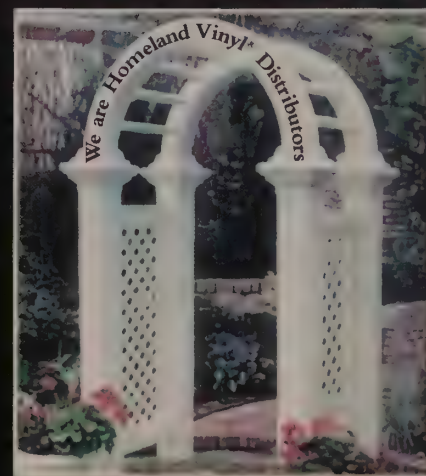

(ie: #1 cedar / spruce or #2 cedar / spruce, virgin vinyl or recycled vinyl)

These are the ploys many companies use, especially if you are not knowledgeable in these areas.

Consumer Fence is a family business dedicated to you, the consumer. We have over 18 years of experience and it is important to us that you feel comfortable from the first phone call to the end of the job. We believe that our commitment to fabricate and install the best P.V.C., wood and chain link systems will leave our customers very satisfied.

Thank you for choosing Consumer Fence.
